BOMBERS ATTACK TOKYO, JAPANESE RADIO ADMITS

PACIFIC HERO AND HIS BRIDE—Lieutenant Edward H. O'Hare, who recently won world fame by shooting down six Japanese planes in one engagement off the Gilbert Islands, was reunited with his bride, the former Rita Wooster, at the Phoenix, Ariz., airport Thursday night. O'Hare flew by clipper from Hawaii when he was summoned to Washington.

'Pup' Phillips Named Atlanta Defense Head

(Picture on Page 3.)

George M. (Pup) Phillips, who rose from buck private to battalion adjutant as a Marine during the last war, yesterday was promoted from chief air-raid warden of the Buckhead district to United States Director of Civilian Defense for the Atlanta Metropolitan Area.

The former Georgia Tech football star will take a leave of absence from his position as special representative of the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company agency here to accept the new post.

Phillips will have charge as coordinator of Fulton, DeKalb, Cobb, Clayton and Rockdale counties, and the heads of civilian defense in these counties, plus other leaders, will be members of an advisory board. Several of the leaders will be chosen by Phillips as an executive committee so he can meet with them on short notice.

"There will be no immediate changes in the defense setup," Phillips said.

The appointment of Phillips was made by Charles H. Murchison, regional director of the Office of Civilian Defense, and John B. Martin, assistant to National OCD Director James M. Landis, who came here from Washington to represent Landis.

It was made on the recommendation of an advisory committee formed to eliminate jurisdictional disputes between county and city units. Members of the committee were Robert Strickland, Marion Smith, Clark Howell, George C. Biggers, Charles J. Currie, James E. Jackson and E. S. Papy.

British Attack Continent With 600 Airplanes

LONDON, April 17.—(AP)—Adding weight and distance to its massive daylight offensive, the RAF hurled 600 planes against German targets today in day-long raids extending from the continental coast to Augsburg, in southern Germany.

The assaults were by far the heaviest of the war by British airmen, topping yesterday's farflung 400-plane attack, which had been the biggest to date.

Emphasizing the enormity of the aerial offensive was a daylight attack upon Augsburg, which involved a roundtrip of at least 1,000 miles right over the heart of industrial Germany.

British air superiority over western Europe was stressed by the air ministry announcement that only two out of the hundreds of planes used—one fighter and one bomber—were lost. It described the enemy opposition as "relatively slight."

The air ministry said at first that two fighters and a bomber were lost, but a later announcement said one of the fighters had been found safe.

The German radio itself only claimed 19 British craft were downed.

Heavy bombers were used against Augsburg today and an informed source said this undoubtedly meant four-motored bombers, possibly American-made fortress planes or giant British Stirlings.

Three times within a few hours today fighters and bombers roared across the channel to harry northern France and bomb a factory at Marquise, in the Calais-Boulogne area, in the continuing war of attrition against the depleted Nazi air forces guarding the continent.

Bomb-carrying Hurricanes—"Hurribombers"—pounded Marquise, where a big shell-manufacturing plant is located, and American-made Boston bombers raided Calais, Rouen and docks at Cherbourg.

German bombers retaliated with a two-hour raid on an English south coast town, the first daylight assault of any consequence this year. (The Germans said Southampton, on the south coast, was attacked "overnight.")

Some speculated that the Germans hoped to keep the RAF fighters at home and thus relieve the hard-pressed German fighters in France by raids like the one today. Any such Nazi hope was dashed this morning, for the Germans were kept high by heavy antiaircraft fire that attested to the vast increase in British ground defenses.

Mercury Reaches Highest of Spring

Continued mild weather, with showers this afternoon, was yesterday's prediction by Glen Jefferson, official weather forecaster.

Yesterday the temperature reached a high peak for the spring when it touched 81, while the low reading was 57.

British Smash 6,000 Oil Wells In West Burma

NEW DELHI, India, April 17.—(AP)—British sappers burned and blasted 6,000 west Burma oil wells today while a gallant battalion of the King's Own Yorkshire light infantry fought yet another superb delaying action against the Japanese until the wells were ablaze.

Then the vastly outnumbered Yorkshiremen withdrew and rejoined the main British imperial forces after inflicting severe casualties.

A communique placed the positions "north of Magwe," indicating the fighting men were even now amid the ruined wells. Magwe is the southern gateway to the field centering around Yenangyaung, 20 miles north.

The British communique said the Yorkshire force "distinguished itself in this gallant action with great determination and bravery and suffered very little loss."

Less Oil for China.

It was this sort of action that has won this handful of men two previous citations for gallantry against great odds in two months of deadly jungle fighting.

Destruction of the Yenangyaung wells cuts off an important source of oil for China.

Burma's oil production in 1941 was 7,700,000 barrels, compared with United States production of 1,400,000,000 barrels and world production of 2,216,235,000, but its proximity to the battlefields made it important.

The British acknowledged that the situation was grave, with their forces depleted by two months of hard fighting, and the Japanese newly reinforced to a total of about 75,000 men.

Menaced From Thailand.

The Chinese high command communique, covering developments up to Wednesday, said the Chinese, under U. S. Lieutenant General Joseph W. Stilwell, had inflicted more than 1,000 casualties on the Japanese in increasingly heavy fighting on the Sittang front, roughly 30 miles north of Toungoo.

Besides the danger to their right flank, the Chinese still were menaced on the east by the Japanese offensive into the Shan states from puppetized Thailand. The invaders reached a point 15 miles from Loikaw, capital of the Karenni tribal state, but there were reported to have taken a severe beating, leaving many bodies on the field.

British forces in the Taungdwingyi area further east still were protecting the right flank of the Chinese expeditionary force.

Another Japanese column trying to reach Loikaw from Toungoo was bogged down.

Georgian, in RCAF, Is Home From Battle

THOMAS J. HOLLIS.

Wishes U. S. Could See War as He Has, Tom Hollis Says.

Tom Hollis, whom Mercer men of the late 20's recall as one of the most blithe and carefree spirits ever to trod the campus, yesterday was in Atlanta on the last day of a furlough from the Royal Canadian Air Force.

He had only one message: "I wish the American people could see this war as I have seen it." He has been on active duty with the RCAF as a pilot and attached to the Bomber Command in England.

For two years Tom Hollis has been in England and he hasn't been inactive.

Just when, where and what action he has seen he couldn't disclose because of regulations. But he has been with RCAF bomber squadrons.

The furlough was deserved, official regulations probably won't deny. Hollis returned by water on an American ship. He will report for duty in Canada and a new assignment this weekend.

Through his exploits in the heart of this war can't be revealed in print, Hollis kept repeating that the American people don't know what war is.

"However, I've heard more about war since I've been back in this country than in the entire

Marimba-Torturer Must Stop Tapping

MEDIA, Pa., April 17.—(AP)—Comparing certain habits of playing the marimba to the Chinese water torture, Judge Harold L. Ervin today laid down some hard and fast rules for Mrs. Bobbe Ernst at the behest of neighbors.

They had complained she had special tunes for each of them which she tapped out on the xylophone-like instrument whenever they happened to pass by.

"The situation presented in this case," ruled Judge Ervin, "is similar to that employed in certain parts of the world where a person is compelled to remain in a certain position and to have drops of water fall continuously on his head."

So, the judge said, Mrs. Ernst can't tune up with "Jingle Bells" if its "with the intention and for the purpose of annoying and disturbing the complainant," Horace G. Collier.

Nor can she, under the injunction, sound off with "Little Old Lady" if the playing is designed to annoy Mrs. Walter E. Broadbelt.

Mrs. Ernst, who contended that the complainers just happened to be passing by whenever the tunes were played, asserted she never had done anything to annoy the neighbors, "but this is more than I can say for them."

"My husband, Albert, plays the trombone, but out of consideration for the neighbors, he never has practiced at home."

The judge decided she shouldn't play except on week days between 9 a. m. and 10 p. m., and on Sunday between 1 p. m. and 10 p. m. She was limited to playing not more than three hours in the aggregate on any one day and not more than an hour at a stretch.

"When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" was banned if it's designed to disturb Leo J. Kelly, and "Anchors Aweigh" was forbidden in the case of any naval officers, although enlisted men aren't mentioned.

In addition, the judge ordered that the injunction on the tunes and playing hours also be extended to any guests.

3 Jap Batteries On Manila Bay Are Silenced

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP) The guns of the Manila bay forts silenced three Japanese artillery batteries in the past 24 hours, the War Department reported today, adding that an enemy bomber was hit and was believed to have crashed.

A late-day communique said that on the island of Panay, about 150 miles south of the Philippine forts, fierce fighting was believed to be in progress between defending troops and an enemy invasion force which effected landings at the cities of Iloilo and Capiz.

Corregidor and near-by Caballo island, the site of Fort Hughes, were raided five times by enemy bombers, flying in formations of from two to eight planes each, the department said.

Communique Text.

The text of the communique, No. 196, based on reports received here up to 5 p. m., eastern war time:

"1. Philippine theater:

"Three enemy batteries, firing on our forts from Cavite and Bataan, were silenced by our artillery fire during the past 24 hours.

"Corregidor and Caballo islands were raided five times by enemy bombers, flying in formations of from two to eight planes. One Japanese bomber was hit by our antiaircraft fire and damaged to such an extent that it is believed to have crashed, though its destruction was not confirmed.

"Fierce fighting is reported from Panay, where the enemy landed at Iloilo and Capiz.

"2. There is nothing to report from other areas."

65,000 Unreported.

Earlier today the War Department announced that more than 65,000 troops and civilians, including 16 generals, had been unreported for more than a week on Bataan peninsula and were "presumably in the hands of the enemy."

On April 9, the day the defending lines finally broke under the ceaseless hammering of greatly superior forces, a department communique said there were 35,000 combat troops, about 25,000 civilians and 5,536 sick and

U. S. Recalls Admiral Leahy From France

VICHY, April 17.—(AP)—Admiral William D. Leahy, United States ambassador to Unoccupied France since November 23, 1940, was called home for consultation tonight as pro-German Pierre Laval rounded out a new cabinet to replace the government which resigned en masse to Marshal Petain.

Late tonight, however, Laval postponed until tomorrow announcement of a final cabinet list.

Official France had, in the interim, two leaders—the aged marshal as chief of the state who was forced to bow before German demands for increased collaboration, and Admiral Jean Darlan, designated as Petain's successor and commander-in-chief of all the armed forces.

The remainder of the government was being planned by Laval, who is expected to assume the position of "civil leader" of the French nation on a basis of out-and-out collaboration with the Axis.

EXPLAINS FOR VICHY—One of the most harassed figures in Washington these days is Gaston Henry-Haye (above), French ambassador to the United States, who has to explain Vichy's governmental meanderings in such a way as to maintain friendly diplomatic relations. Return to power of pro-Nazi Pierre Laval yesterday had stretched connections near the breaking point.

Nipponese Disclaim 'Enemy' Damaged War Establishments

SAN FRANCISCO, April 17.—(AP)—The Tokyo radio announced tonight that "enemy bombers" attacked Tokyo, the CBS listening station reported.

The Tokyo broadcast said:

"Enemy bombers appeared over Tokyo for the first time in the current war, inflicting damage on schools and hospitals. The raid occurred shortly past noon on Saturday (Tokyo time).

"Invading planes failed to cause any damage on military establishments, although casualties in the schools and hospitals were as yet unknown.

"This inhuman attack on these cultural establishments and on residential districts is causing widespread indignation among the populace."

Perhaps related to the thrust against Tokyo, a flimsily constructed city of 5,000,000 persons, was an announcement only an hour or so earlier by the Berlin radio that more than 400 buildings were destroyed and a considerable number of persons were killed or injured in a fire at Oguni, in northern Japan. The German announcer did not state the cause of the fire.

CBS said the first announcement of the bombing was in an English language broadcast. The announcement was repeated a few minutes later in a Japanese language broadcast which injected a new angle that "the enemy planes did not attempt to hit military establishments."

The Japanese language broadcast said:

"Just after noon on the 18th the first enemy planes appeared over the city of Tokyo. A number of bombs were dropped.

"The enemy planes did not attempt to hit military establishments, and only inflicted damage on grammar schools, hospitals and cultural establishments.

"These planes were repulsed by a heavy barrage from our defense guns.

"The previous training of the Tokyo populace for air raid defense was put into immediate practice. I wish to reveal that our losses were exceedingly light."

WASHINGTON, Saturday, April 18.—(AP)—The War and Navy departments had no confirmation immediately today on the Japanese announcement of bombing of Tokyo.

There was no indication of when a communique might be issued. It was pointed out that if the bombing was a long-distance attack, the aircraft would take many hours to return to their starting point, and that reports would be unavailable until then.

U. S. bombers struck within 1,000 miles of the Japanese mainland on March 4 in a carrier-based attack on Marcus Island. Japanese hangars, storages, ammunition and fuel depots and a radio station were smashed there.

The United States naval-air forces on that sweep also blasted Japanese-captured Wake Island. Shore batteries were silenced there, fuel barges and dredges were sunk, underground hangars, magazines and three four-engined seaplanes were demolished.

Several Japanese seamen also were captured, and the Americans lost only a single plane in that combat.

Tokyo officials, charged with protecting some 5,000,000 residents in a city where many of the houses are flimsily built, long have been worried about air attacks.

The capital has undergone air alerts when sighting its own planes because of this uneasiness and general expectation of attack. The people have been repeatedly warned to expect bombings. On March 4 when Marcus was attacked the Japanese announcer warned the people Tokyo might be next.

Aside from newly constructed air raid shelters, the city has a subway system which could be utilized. The city itself sprawls over 100 square miles, and there are hilly sections varying in height from 50 to 130 feet.

DeGaulle Will Address America This Afternoon

NEW YORK, April 17.—(AP)—General Charles de Gaulle, leader of the Free French forces, has been scheduled for a Saturday afternoon broadcast to this country via the combined NBC and Blue networks. The time is 3:25 o'clock (E. W. T.). He will speak in French, followed by an English translation.

REDS OVERSUBSCRIBE LOAN.

MOSCOW, April 17.—(AP)—The commissariat of finance announced today that a state war loan for 10,000,000,000 rubles opened Tuesday was oversubscribed by 68,000,000 rubles in two days and subscriptions still continue.

Patent Laws Must Be Overhauled To Win War, Arnold Says

Asserts Cartels Have Hindered Arms Output

Terms Pending Wartime Patents Bill 'Useful Stop Gap.'

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP) Thurman Arnold, head of the Justice Department's anti-trust division, testified today that the nation's patent laws must be overhauled in order to win the war and permit a vast economic development when peace comes.

The assistant attorney general told the Senate Patents Committee that national and international cartels, often based upon present patent laws, had divulged military secrets to foreign nations which are now enemies of this country had restricted development of vital war industries, and had hampered production and distribution of many necessities of life.

"If the patent bottlenecks are broken, and knowledge and skill are disseminated, new organizations will arise and be in a position to compete with each other after the war," Arnold testified. "That competition will come into being if the American people are convinced it is desirable and do not again tolerate combinations, either by private groups or government, to shut our new production down in order to stabilize the market after the war."

Wartime Bill.

He termed a wartime patents bill pending before the committee a "useful stop gap," adding "It does not attack the fundamental problem—it does not go far enough." Under the bill, the President could seize patents deemed vital to the war effort or arrange for their general use under licenses.

The assistant attorney general's attack upon international cartels came after one of his assistants, Allen Dobey, testified that an agreement between the Remington Arms Company, of Bridgeport, Conn., and German concerns had blocked sales of certain ammunition to the British Purchasing Commission early last year.

Dobey testified that Remington Arms, controlled by E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Company, had agreed not to sell ammunition for military use in Germany or the British Empire when it obtained a German patent to use "tetrazene," a chemical priming compound for ammunition for firearms.

Dobey also said that in "fairness to Remington" the Justice Department officials "do not believe that Remington's agreement" with the German concerns "had in fact operated to date as a serious impediment to the Allied war effort."

Remington officials, he said, had broken provisions of the agreement which barred the sales to the British and which called for royalty payments to German interests on sales of the ammunition to the United States and other customers. Dobey said such royalty payments might provide military data to Germany by revealing the amount of sales in this country, but later he stated that while the United States Army was experimenting with the patented ammunition, it had not come into general use.

Later in Day.

Later in the day, Remington Arms Company sent a telegram to Chairman Bone, Democrat, Washington, of the senate committee, saying that testimony about tetrazene had created false impressions.

The agreement with the German interests had helped rather than hindered production of ammunition for the United States, the telegram stated.

"Remington gave the United States government full information about tetrazene, and even assisted with tests of the material in a government arsenal, before the agreement with the German company was signed in 1929. It should be remembered that, at that time, the German company held a worldwide monopoly on the manufacture of this material, and it was only by obtaining the German patent that the material could be manufactured in this country at all.

"The German inventor of tetrazene was introduced by Remington to officials of the arsenal, and he gave them first-hand information as to its uses and possibilities. Remington has licensed the United States government to manufacture tetrazene at cost and with no profit to Remington. Every improvement in use or manufacture, whether developed in Remington laboratories or obtained from the German company, was passed on to the United States government, without charge."

FRANCE'S DIVIDED WORLD EMPIRE—French territory all over the globe is indicated on this map by black-shaded areas and underscored names. The "Cross-of-Lorrain" symbols—sign of the DeGaullists—indicate territories under control of the Free French. The Vichy French control the others. Fear was expressed in Washington the return of Pierre Laval, arch collaborationist, to power in Vichy would mean employment of the French fleet in an effort to recapture colonies taken by the DeGaulle government. With U. S.-Vichy relations at a tense point, Washington heard America was prepared to act quickly if necessary to protect her interests.

French Ships Fly Swastikas, Moscow Says

40 War Vessels Have Dropped Tri-Color, Radio Reports.

LONDON, April 17.—(AP)—The Moscow radio said tonight that "already 40 French warships have changed the tri-color for the Nazi swastika."

"Is this the writing on the wall?" the broadcaster asked in an English news commentary.

There was no elaboration of the statement. There have been reports that the Germans took over unfinished submarines and possibly some destroyers when they occupied France, and that they have since finished them themselves.

Petain Urged To Flee, Daily Mail Says

LONDON, Saturday, April 18.—(AP)—A Daily Mail dispatch from the French frontier today said powerful friends of Marshal Petain have urged him to be ready to fly to Morocco and establish a government there where he would be free from German pressure.

"With Pierre Laval again in power these friends of Petain form an opposition that may come into open conflict with the collaborationists," the Daily Mail article said.

"Laval may keep details of his policy from Petain. Should a showdown become necessary he will try to break Petain's will, or depose him."

RATIONING IN BRAZIL.

RIO DE JANEIRO, April 17.—(AP)—President Getulio Vargas issued decrees tonight establishing a priorities system for national production "concerning the national security," rationing motor cars and trucks and licensing export and re-export of certain vital products.

Buckeyes Set Assembly Mark In Far Pacific

Airacobra Goes From Crate to Air in Only Five Hours.

By MERRILL MUELLER.

A UNITED NATIONS AIR BASE, SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, April 17.—(INS)—It's a long, long way from the fertile farms and bustling cities of Ohio to the sun-baked bushland of Australia. But today I saw a group of young Air Corps officers from the Buckeye State performing their jobs with cool-headed efficiency that ought to make their folks back home mighty proud.

Here in this theater of conflict these Ohioans are as typically American as is the state from which they hail. That much I witnessed for myself when this group, directing an assembly job, demonstrated the energy of spirit and nimbleness of fingers with which a deadly Airacobra fighter plane was unpacked, put together and sent into the air in record time.

It was just before 9 o'clock in the morning when I joined a bunch of grinning, confident youngsters standing around a huge crate at a corner of one of the large air fields the United States Army Air Corps is now operating in Australia.

American Vigor.

"Make yourself comfortable," Lieutenant Colonel Richard Legge told me, "and the boys will show you how it's done."

They did.

Legge nodded and immediately a hammer and a chisel bit into the crate with a vim and a vigor characteristically American.

All around me on the field other crews were doing the same thing. Stored in one area were a pile of identical boxes, while parked here and there about the field stood their assembled contents—planes—ready for combat.

By the time I smoked my first cigaret, there was nothing left of the box in front of me, except its bottom. On it rested the major section of the Airacobra. I recalled that U. S. Air Corps specifications for the packing of planes are so efficient that I had seen dismantled American airplane crates and the few scraps left within them used in the Middle East to build barrack huts for both British and Allied troops.

Afraid Only of "Doc."

As I was standing there, watching the boys work, an air corps medical officer, Lieutenant Carl E. "Doc" Zeithaml, of Cleveland, came up to the spot, took a look and said:

"How are they doing?"

Then he answered his own question.

"They're out to beat yesterday's record for assembly," he observed.

A grave young man of 36, "Doc" Zeithaml, is the only man in the world that the pilots of this particular outfit fear. For he's the only one who can ground them if he finds their heart, pulse, eyesight or some other physical factor off the mark of perfection required of modern combat flyers.

"At the rate they're going, they'll have this thing flying by noon," Lieutenant E. L. Gillespie, of Cincinnati, who was supervising the assembly job, told me.

By 10 o'clock, sure enough, the plane was standing on her own three legs and Lieutenant Robert Crotcher, of Cincinnati, an armaments officer, arrived to check her guns and prepare the loading of the weapons.

"She's gonna run pretty, this one—smooth as that old Ohio river," Lieutenant Crotcher remarked with a touch of pride in his voice.

Lieutenant Bill Kunts, of Freemont, Ohio, joined me as the sweating crew labored under the intense Australian sunshine to fit the prop to the shaft and bolt the wings to the fuselage.

"They're going great," Kunts said. "They'll cop the record, sure."

Another clean-cut, clear-eyed youngster, with air corps insignia, came up and offered me a real American cigaret. I thanked him, saying: "I hope you're from Peoria (Illinois)."

He howled with laughter.

"Sorry," he said, "I'm from Delaware, Ohio. Lieutenant Evans Stephens is the name. The colonel sent me over to tell you—before you go nuts—that you asked for it and you're going to get it."

All I had asked for was to meet "some" Ohioans. But here I was practically surrounded by them.

Just then Colonel Legge rejoined us. I asked him where he was from.

"Nebraska," he growled.

He gave some instructions to a ground crew nearby, whose members then painted the words: "Miss Ohio" on the nose of the fighter.

"You started something," the colonel told me. "But, say, where are you from?"

I got up in order to get a head start on that one, explaining:

"You see, colonel, it's this way. My family comes from Cleveland."

They gleefully chased me off the field as King took "Miss Ohio" into the sky with a roar—from crate to the air in less than five hours.

Boys from every state are doing just that, with scores of new airplanes every day, supplying the growing United Nations air offensive over this region.

'Amateur' Probing 'Pity,' Biddle Says

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP) Attorney General Biddle said today, in connection with plans of Representatives Dies, Democrat, Texas, to hold hearings at Jasper, Texas, on Nazi spy activities, that "I think it always is a pity to have amateur investigations of espionage."

Asked at a press conference about Dies' announced intention, the attorney general said:

"We have three large investigative services—the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and the Navy and Army Intelligence Services. They have been co-operating perfectly and are in daily contact. I think it always is a pity to have amateur investigations of espionage whether by Mr. Dies or anyone else. It needs trained, co-ordinated, responsible action."

time I was in England," he said.

"We are in a war and a helluva war. We must bow our necks and bear down, or else—. I wish the American people could see this war as I have."

Regulations are so strict that Hollis could not reveal his correct age. But he did show a pair of identification tags he wears around his neck. One is fireproof.

"Just in case," he mused. "And our boys are wearing them, too," he declared. "I'm one of them, of course. You see there is an agreement between the British and American governments that men already trained in British foreign service may remain there, if needed."

Hollis never liked Hitler. Neither his precepts nor his ideals. Born with the heritage of liberty-loving ancestry it was quite natural that this Mercer boy, an A. T. O. by the way, relinquished his post with a prominent insurance firm here and hied himself to Canada to enlist and do his part long before Americans generally thought much of this war.

It was in July, 1940, that he joined the RCAF to be trained and later selected as a pilot, observer or gunner. Following two months of intensive drills at a Canadian point, he was chosen a pilot and sent to New Brunswick for further work and study.

There he won his wings in March, 1941. Ordered to England immediately, he was assigned to his pilot's duties on a bomber squadron and placed under fire. And there the story ends—for the time being, at least.

Output Barred On 349 Types Of Radio Tubes

Present Stocks Sufficient for Two Years, WPB Says.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP). Radio tube manufacturers were ordered by the War Production Board today to discontinue within 70 days civilian output of 349 of the 710 types of radio tubes now on the market. The discontinued types are obsolete, duplicate and small-demand types of tubes, WPB said.

The board estimated that present stocks of the 349 types would suffice for civilian needs for at least two years, and would be added to by rejects from military production of the same types.

It was estimated that 156,000 man hours and 80,000 machine hours would be released annually by the production stoppage, in addition to substantial quantities of critical materials.

Price Increased On Some Rayons.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP). The Office of Price Administration today increased manufacturers' ceiling prices on seven types of rayon "grey goods" used in low-priced dresses, and simultaneously lowered the ceiling on seven twill and taffeta types, used for more expensive apparel.

The purpose in increasing the price of the less remunerative fabrics, it was explained, was to induce manufacturers away from a present "serious" tendency to concentrate on the output of more profitable goods.

The price increase was expected by OPA to bring back into production a normal amount of the lower price material. It amounted to ½ cent a yard for acetate warp types, used in plain dresses, and 1¾ cents a yard for the "all-viscose" types, used in lightweight print garments.

The general revision of the rayon grey goods price order extended ceilings over more than 90 per cent of all grey goods produced.

Rigid Control Placed On Heavy Compressors.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP) A rigid allocation control was imposed today by the government upon the production of heavy compressors, which are urgently needed in the war production program.

The placing or acceptance of orders for heavy compressors was forbidden except when cleared by the War Production Board on special forms.

Total requirements for the next year are greater than the available producing capacity, WPB said, because of the expansion programs for aviation gasoline, oxygen, ammonia, synthetic rubber and toluene. In addition, more are needed for tank, airplane, aluminum and steel plants.

WPB said several companies have undertaken expansion programs, but the necessity for concentrating available machine tools on weapons, ships and planes will delay the completion of the new facilities.

Dr. Truett Urges Youths To Read Bibles Daily

Hundreds of Atlanta young people last night heard stern admonishment from Dr. George W. Truett to "remember your Creator in the days of your youth" as Young People's Night was held at the municipal auditorium in the series of evangelistic services being conducted by the famous minister.

"I adjure you, my dear young comrades and fellow pupils in the School of Christ, to go on earnestly and enthusiastically, prayerfully reading your Bibles every day, lashing yourselves in unfaltering trust to the will and way of the Saviour and Lord," he declared.

"God has a plan for each young life, even as He has a plan for every life in every generation in all the world. Find and follow God's plan, and He will bring you, in His own good time, to the Plains of Peace."

No Services Today.

The services were the next to the last in the eight-day series. There will be no services today. Dr. Truett will speak again at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning at Druid Hills Baptist church, at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon at the Friendship Baptist church, Atlanta's oldest Negro congregation, and at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in the auditorium.

Dr. Truett's sermon yesterday morning at the church was a presentation of the Bible's teaching concerning life's burdens. He cited three Scriptures, declaring we are each to bear our own burdens, that we are to bear one another's burdens, and that we are to cast our burdens on the Lord.

"I would speak a simple word on the threefold message of the Bible concerning life's burdens," he said. "Men and women everywhere have burdens. Sooner or later they come to us all. Sometimes the burdens of life can be seen. The deepest and most poignant burdens are not seen. If we knew what fierce battles some men and women are fighting, and what weighty burdens they were carrying, it would teach us lessons of restraint and charity and contentment beyond any we ever have known.

Burdens in Bible.

"The Bible says three things about our burdens. Paul gives us two of them and the Psalmist one. Notice them: 'Every man shall bear his own burden.' 'Bear ye one another's burdens, and thus fulfill the law of Christ.' 'Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and He shall sustain thee.'

"First, our burdens are nontransferable. We were born alone and when we pass from the earthly stage, no matter when or where or how, we shall make that passage alone, and between the cradle and the grave, life, to a remarkable degree, must be lived alone. Duty is personal. Responsibility is personal. Sin is personal. Repentance must be personal. Faith in Christ, obedience to Christ must be personal. Nobody can repent of sin for you, nor can anybody believe on Christ for you, nor can any one make answer at the judgment bar of God for you. We must every one give an account of himself to God. There is no such thing as proxyship, deputyship, sponsorship in this matter of serving the Lord.

"Sometimes, ofttimes, our burdens are community burdens, social burdens, burdens to be shared with others. 'Bear ye one another's burdens, and thus fulfill the law of Christ.'

Walking in Darkness.

"There are those who are without Christ—no Saviour, no blessed Master before Whom they bow, saying with Thomas, 'My Lord, and my God.' Oh, what a challenge it would be if there were only one in Atlanta, but there are hundreds, yea, and even thousands, who are walking alone in the darkness.

"But this Scripture has a broader meaning than that. We are not only to make it a point to do our best to recover people who have gone wrong and are going wrong, but we are to share burdens with people all about us, whatever their burdens are. There are the burdens of the sorrowing. How our hearts go out to these mothers and fathers whose sons have gone out on these battlefields. Oh, how they need our prayers and our help. There are people bearing great responsibilities in church and in state. Don't leave them alone. Don't take things for granted too much. Pray for the people who rule.

"How may we help people? We may help them by living the right kind of lives ourselves. The highest contribution you ever will offer this community and this world is to offer it the right kind of a life. One Savonarola turned the tides of wicked Florence. One Aristides, the just man, perceptibly lifted Athens higher. Ten righteous men would have saved Sodom. The people of Constantinople said about John Cyrysostom, the golden-mouthed: 'It were better for the sun to cease his shining than for John Chrysostom to cease his preaching.' The best contribution you can ever offer to this weary, needy world is to offer it the right kind of a life.

Relieving Burdens.

"Nor is that all. We are to make it a point constantly to encourage people. Oh, my brother man, it is a sin for any man on earth to be a miserable, discourager! Discouragement is a sin. Men and women are fighting a big battle, and they do not need weights put on them by discouragement.

"Now there is one more word to say, and it is the best of all: 'Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and He shall sustain thee.'

"How will he sustain you? He will do it in one of two ways. He may take the burden away. Sometimes He does. But suppose it is not? And sometimes it is not. Ofttimes it is not. We pray, but there is the burden yet. Now what if God shall not take the burden away? Then He has promised to come in with divine reenforcement and help us to bear that burden and be victor, no matter how weighty it is nor how fiery in its biting power in our life. Paul had a thorn in his flesh. He called it the 'messenger of Satan,' sent to buffet him, and he said: 'Thrice did I beseech the Lord that He would take that thorn away.'

"That old spiritual has so much Christian philosophy—'Take Your Burden to the Lord and Leave It There.' Don't take it there, and then, like Bunyan, try to pick up that sack of sin. Take your burdens and leave them there.

"God's will is always right. God's will is always safe, and God's will is always best. God's will be done with us and ours today and through all the days!"

Dr. Truett Ends Talks Tomorrow

Dr. George W. Truett, noted Baptist minister, will conclude his eight-day preaching mission in Atlanta with three services tomorrow. He will speak at Druid Hills Baptist church at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning and he will be heard in two meetings, at 3 o'clock and 8 o'clock at the Municipal auditorium.

The 3 o'clock service tomorrow afternoon will commemorate the sixtieth anniversary of the ministry of Dr. Edward Randolph Carter, of Friendship Baptist church.

He will deliver his closing sermon at 8 o'clock tomorrow night, which will be known as "Everybody's Night." A great audience is expected to hear the distinguished Texan at this closing service.

Social Justice Probe To Open Next Week

Father Coughlin Will Be Principal Witness, Biddle Says.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP) A federal grand jury will begin here next week an exhaustive investigation of the weekly magazine Social Justice, with a prospect that its founder, the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, will be a principal witness, Attorney General Biddle disclosed today.

Speaking at a press conference, in which he said that the paper's language was "clearly seditious," the attorney general declared that the object of the Justice Department's presentation would be indictment under what is known as the sedition law of "all those responsible" for the magazine.

To Take Action.

Asked at the start of the conference whether he proposed to follow up the action taken Tuesday by Postmaster General Walker in suspending mailing privileges of Social Justice pending a proceeding to revoke such rights, Biddle said:

"I think the language in Social Justice is clearly seditious and without question it is our responsibility to take action.

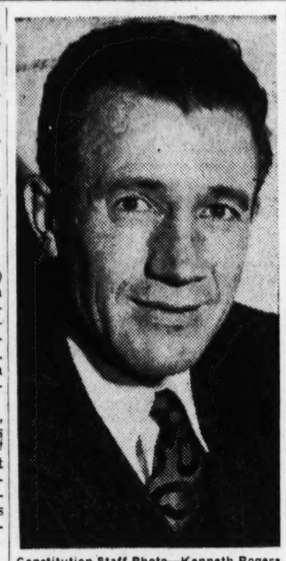

"There is a grand jury in the District of Columbia investigating seditious matters. We propose to put the evidence of the seditious content of Social Justice before that grand jury. We intend to present evidence of responsibility as to who published and who wrote it, and also evidence of any tie-up with the Axis."

Propaganda Noted.

With respect to the latter, Biddle called attention to his letter to the postmaster general on Tuesday in which he referred to the "parallelism" between matter printed in Social Justice and propaganda broadcast by enemy countries.

After the post office action had been announced, Father Coughlin said at Detroit that he would challenge the attorney general to give him an opportunity to defend Social Justice.

Prewitt Semmes, attorney for Father Coughlin, and for the magazine, said the next scheduled issue of the publication would be printed and offered to the Post Office Department for mailing.

OCD Director Will Address Lawyer Group

James M. Landis To Appear Here at Dinner on April 29.

James M. Landis, director of the Office of Civilian Defense, will speak at the Atlanta Bar Association's annual dinner, April 29, it was announced yesterday by F. M. Bird, association president.

"The Place of the Lawyer in National Defense" will be the subject of Landis' address. He will be introduced by Robert B. Troutman, chairman of the Citizens' Defense Committee of Georgia.

The occasion will mark the first visit of the Civilian Defense director in the southeast since he assumed the appointment. Landis also is scheduled to speak to the Citizens' Defense Committee of Georgia and a regional meeting of OCD executives and workers.

The Citizens' Defense Committee meeting will be held in the senate chamber at the capitol, while bar association officials will announce the place for their dinner.

DeKalb County Taking Lead In War Work

Nutrition Program Report Given at Women's Unit Meeting.

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 17.—(AP)—DeKalb county is taking a lead in preparing its citizens for war efforts by an expanded program of nutritution studies, Mrs. Earl Clapp, executive secretary to the women's division of the Citizens Defense Committee, asserted today.

Mrs. Charles P. Mashburn, nutrition chairman of the DeKalb county organization, reported to the division that 1,172 adults have been given nutrition instruction and the county committee has held 11 classes with a standard 20-hour course.

In addition, 2,400 families were reported helped with canning problems and 853 families who canned an average of 375 quarts.

Special nutrition training was given 1,199 girls in DeKalb.

Mrs. Clapp said the report from DeKalb was "one of the finest we have ever received in this office."

Nutrition is one of the main projects of the women's division, Mrs. Clapp said, and reports from counties throughout the state indicate an active campaign is in progress.

4 Cadets Killed Near Valdosta

VALDOSTA, Ga., April 17.—(AP) A mid-air collision of two training planes today killed four cadets from the Army's advanced training school at Moody field.

Field officers identified the dead as Lloyd Byron Davis, 26, of Utica, Miss.; Richard Dexter Jr., 25, of Wheatfield, Ind.; Sammy S. Burrell, 27, of Sallis, Miss., and Howard C. Berger, 22, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Next of kin were notified and a board of inquiry was named to investigate the accident which occurred about four miles southeast of the field.

Ralph Greco, U. S. No. 1 Bank Robber, Seized

G-Men Arrest Fugitive at N. J. 'Honky Tonk.'

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP) The Justice Department announced today that G-men had arrested Ralph Greco, whom it described as "the No. 1 bank robbery fugitive in the United States" at a "honky-tonk" saloon in Long Branch, N. J.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said that Greco was wanted in connection with the $76,000 robbery of messengers of the First Stroudsburg (Pa.) National Bank last August 5 and the robbery of the First National Bank of Suffield, Conn., on July 21, 1938, when three bandits got away with $11,500.

ATLANTA, GA., APRIL 18, 1942.

Needs More Than Police

Acting Mayor Lyle has ordered an immediate police drive on vice and has declared that every questionable establishment that fails to clean house will be closed. Bootlegging, prostitution and veneral diseases are the evils which it is the intent to banish from the city.

It should not be difficult to end bootlegging in Atlanta. Under the licensed liquor store system there is ample supply of legitimate liquor for any normal man and a police force which knows its business should not find it extremely difficult to track down any sources of illegal liquor which may exist.

The real objective in the other portion of the campaign is the elimination of veneral disease. Prostitution enters the picture merely as the most prolific source of these diseases which debilitate our youth and destroy manhood and womanhood alike.

It will take more than a concentrated police drive on known prostitutes to stamp out such a plague as syphilis in a city like Atlanta. Prostitution may have first infected the locality with the dread disease but, once it is here, it is spread in a hundred different ways. Arrest of every prostitute in Atlanta and ultimate driving from the city of all immoral women, even if possible, would not go far in ending the syphilis plague. It is a more difficult and costly task than that.

What is required is clinic treatment for all sufferers from the disease, treatment so carefully and scientifically administered that each individual case shall receive its individual and correct treatment. To provide such treatment calls for a large and well-equipped veneral disease hospital. It calls for a large and competent staff of physicians and nurses. It calls, perhaps most difficult task of all, for a long-drawn campaign of public education and enlightenment, to teach all victims of the disease to seek treatment in its early stages.

Such a campaign will cost money. The Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce has been working to secure just such a campaign for Atlanta and, in that effort, has acquired much factual information. If Mayor Lyle and other leaders in the city government sincerely wish to stamp out syphilis from Atlanta they could do no better than confer with leaders of the Jaycee movement and take advantage of the information and plans already secured and worked out.

Raids on houses of prostitution and harrying of individual prostitutes can result only in driving some of the women from the city, to spread the plague in other localities. Not all will be driven out and the ranks of immorality will be quickly refilled by others, probably women driven out of other cities in like manner.

Venereal disease is a problem of fearful magnitude and it can never be solved by mere police activity.

Proof of Guilt

This week the Post Office Department banned from the mails that weekly publication, "Social Justice," which was founded by Father Coughlin. Hearing on whether the ban is to be made permanent is set for the end of this month.

On Wednesday night Berlin radio commented upon this action, praising Father Coughlin and branding the suppression of "Social Justice" as an example of American "gangster methods."

No further evidence should be needed, when the hearing opens on the proposed permanent ban. Any publication in America that is approved by the propagandists of Berlin is, automatically, thereby proven injurious to America and this nation's war effort. It is prima facie evidence which cannot be gainsaid.

Similarily, Berlin defense of Coughlin, or any other American, is ample proof the individual defended is serving the purposes of Germany and is, therefore, either wittingly or unwittingly, a traitor to and an enemy of this country.

Traitors in Command

The Brothers Rat of the French republic have taken charge. The peasant of Auvergne and the decadent aristocrat of the "town of the Germans" have come from the fallen cradle of modern civilization to the capital of severed France.

They come not as Frenchmen but as representatives of a new order. They come not to help Frenchmen but to doom them. They come not to help France but to stamp out the feeble spark of liberty left in a hungry, disheartened, defeated, rag-taggle torso of a dismembered land. They come not at the behest of Frenchmen but at the express order of a man to whom France is but a pawn on a staggering board of world war.

So it is that Pierre Laval, the peasant, and Fernand de Brinon, the aristocrat, come to Vichy, rulers now of a nation they betrayed into the hands of a foreign conqueror. The Brothers Rat.

The old marshal is effectively shunted aside. His guns are spiked, his glorious heritage of the trench of bayonets at Verdun buried, as his troops lie buried where they fought for the liberties the Brothers Rat seek now to stifle at Vichy.

Washington has taken the only course possible in refusing to deal with Laval or his new government. Many will feel, properly, that the government of the United States should emphasize its repugnance of the new government by action rather than mere words. No chances should be taken that the Caribbean island possessions of France can at some time in the future be used against the United States or other nations of the western hemisphere. Action now may avert disaster later, especially when it is true these islands are the weak link in the chain of defenses forged across the Caribbean to protect the Panama Canal.

Any consideration of the French problem necessarily must revolve around the French fleet. It is the one paramount consideration, and, although many lean to the belief that the fleet will be used primarily for Mediterranean convoy duty and for the recapture of Free French territories, it is not possible to lightly dismiss the fact that any joining of the French battleships and other vessels with the German heavy units could well spell disaster to the democracies.

It is perhaps too easy to take the viewpoint that the Germans will not be able to use the French vessels in conjunction with their own. Too many Allied disasters have stemmed from a refusal to admit that an action is possible, that it is logical strategy even though it appears difficult, and that the Germans have done the things that appear only barely possible. The invasion of Norway, the dash of the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Prinz Eugen through the Dover Straits, and the Japanese wave are cases in point.

The fact that these French and German vessels were built to counter each other means equally that they are built to complement each other under the conditions now pertaining. Their gun power is complementary, their speed is complementary and the development of tactical use is largely complementary. There has been time for the training of "faithful" crews, although their sea experience necessarily has been limited.

Only the newer battleships of the United Nations could meet such a battle line of Franco-German sea power. The number of these vessels is limited, the need for their use in many parts of the world is great. It is for this reason the United Nations should act immediately to stifle French power wherever it can without further appeasing of Vichy government now given over at the behest of Hitler to the Brothers Rat.

REGISTER FOR ELECTION

(From The Brunswick News)

If you want to vote in this year's elections—and there are indications that there will be some heated and interesting races—don't overlook the fact that you must register not later than May 2, that being six months prior to the general election on November 2.

Only those who have paid all poll taxes due the state and those who have become or will become 21 years of age by November 2 are eligible to register. Those who have reached the voting age since the last election are not required to pay poll tax the first time they vote, but they must register to be eligible.

To vote is both a duty and a privilege. It is a mark of good citizenship anywhere and particularly in such trying times as these.

Regardless of party or preference it is your duty to vote.

Let's keep saying it with ballots instead of bullets in this country.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

HIS LAST CHANCE WASHINGTON, April 17.—The time for the great German offensive, heralded by Hitler for the spring, is fast approaching. Heretofore it has been accepted as a foregone conclusion by Allied military men that the Nazis were only awaiting the return of good weather to resume an all-out effort to bring the war to an end this year.

We have Hitler's own word for it. In one of his last public utterances he spoke of the direful things he intended doing to the Russians when the Muscovite snows melt and offer firm ground for the movement of his mechanized forces.

The conclusion that the Germans will be compelled to launch an attack this spring which will make all others look meek in comparison, is based on the sound thesis that the Nazis will have to win the war this year, or not at all. Another year and America's vast industrial and manpower resources will be marshaled for the conflict. When that comes, Hitler's doom is sealed. Mr. Roosevelt speaks confidently of winning the war in two or three years. A year from now we will have our foot in the door, and all the forces of the Axis will be unable to close it against us. From then on it will be only a matter of time.

That has been the thesis of the war which the Allied high command accepts. The coming months were to tell the tale of whether it was to last two, five, or an indeterminate number of years. It all depends on how things go in Russia. If the Soviets stand up, the end is in sight. If they go down, the future is dark, uncertain.

DIFFERENT IDEAS In the face of this generally accepted appraisal of the war situation, now comes General Sir Hubert Gough, 72-year-old British veteran of the Boer and World Wars, with an entirely different set of ideas. He believes that the heralded Hitler offensives have not started "because he lacks the man power to carry them out."

General Gough's views are striking in that they are at variance with those of many military leaders and commentators. Commander of the British fifth army in France from 1914 to 1918, he was decorated by many governments for extraordinary service in World War No. 1. Presently he is the military correspondent for Reuter's, the leading British press service, as well as being zone organizer of London's local defense volunteers.

Although the time set for Hitler's 1942 offensive is passing, though the Germans have long and loudly proclaimed its imminence, he sees no signs of its immediate beginning.

CITES MANY REPORTS General Gough says there are reports, based on very fair evidence, that many German divisions have been moved from France and have already been thrown into the battle in Russia. Similarly, he tells of other German divisions, withdrawn to Poland and Germany for a rest, which have been hastily brought back to the Soviet front to re-enter the battefield before completing their rest.

"Why has this been done, and why has the great offensive not begun?" asks the veteran British general.

As to the various reports of Axis concentrations in southeastern Europe, which suggest a serious offensive against Syria, Suez, or perhaps the Caucasus, he says it is possible that these threats and reports are issued partly to hearten the German people by making them continue to believe in the invincibility of their arms and, at the same time, to confuse the Allies.

TIME GETTING SHORT Continued bombardment of Malta and the steady reinforcement of Rommel's army in Libya point to an offensive there, also, but he expresses the belief the Germans have only two armored divisions there. Here, again, he makes the reminder that the time is getting short and in another six weeks the heat of Africa will make an offensive almost impossible.

On the other hand, General Gough says the Russians have never ceased their pressure on German troops and that they are now in a position where they could win some very decisive victories, any day.

"I have every reason to believe," he summarizes, "that the Russians still have plenty of trained and equipped divisions in reserve who are quite fresh. From all these considerations, I am led to the conclusion that Hitler's offensives have not started because he lacks the man power to carry them out."

CONFIRMED IN RUSSIA The Gough thesis is highly interesting and is not without some support. A front-line correspondent of the Red army newspaper, Krasnaia Zvezda, after tracing the process by which German units originally designated for the spring offensive have gradually been sent into the lines to resist Soviet pressure, comes to the conclusion that the Hitlerite offensive cannot proceed as planned.

The Germans had expected to spend the winter in fortified positions where they could rest their battered forces before embarking on a new drive. Their calculations went awry with the devastating Russian counter-offensive beginning last December.

"The Red army's constant pressure," says a Moscow communique, "has prevented the Germans from preparing for the spring offensive they had planned."

FOOLS TO TAKE BAIT General Gough reads from it all the possibility of German overtures for a fairly acceptable peace, but warns that the Allies will be fools if they fall into the trap. The thing to do, he urges, is to strike now with all of our strength.

It is an interesting theme which cannot be wholly ignored.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

A Letter From Syria.

A letter from one who signs himself George Yavroumis, construction engineer with the F. W. A. Address given is a local hotel. Important part of the letter is an extract from another letter which Mr. Yavroumis says was written by his brother and mailed from Damascus, Syria, on November 1 last. The brother is described as Homer Yavroumis and is said to have been chief of engineers of the Greek Army before Germany conquered that country.

So, while I never heard of either Yavroumis before and therefore cannot vouch for them, the extracts from the letter said to be from Damascus are given herewith:

"I am suffering here two months because of the baseness of the Turk. With 12 other officers, on a sailing ship, we left Peraeus direct for Smyrna. After two weeks of fear that the Germans or the Italians might capture us, we landed at Isezmes, on the Turkish coast near Smyrna, where our friends the Turks put us in jail.

"After 25 days of hard imprisonment, we succeeded in getting out of jail by pretending we were Cyprians who were captured by the Greeks and escaped.

"From Isezmes we went to Smyrna and Angora and here. Tomorrow I leave for Cairo. . . . Perhaps I'll return, in secret, to Greece for service there.

"Why did I leave Greece? Because I could not stand seeing the barbarous Huns and the ludicrous Italians."

That's the letter. Seems to dislike the Turks, anyway.

"Wait and See."

May Be Fatal.

Norman Bel Geddes, the famous designer, issues a warning to American industrialists in the current issue of the Conference Board Management Record. Says he, the "wait and see" policy brought disaster to many plants in England and France, because they did not take proper precautions against air raids prior to the coming of said raiders.

And so, thinks Mr. Bel Geddes, American managers should at once begin the task of properly camouflaging their plants, so the enemy, if he comes, won't be able to see them from the sky.

Bel Geddes admits it is difficult to camouflage a factory in a city, pointing out this really requires the co-operation of an entire area, so the camouflage may be planned on an area basis.

But he particularly urges owners of plants located in relatively isolated places to take advantage of the protection inherent in camouflage, since these plants, which can easily become landmarks for bombers, can also generaly be most easily concealed by the camoufleur's art.

He suggests, first, use of the aerial camera, first to obtain the needed information with which to work and, later, to check the degree of actual camouflage achieved.

The idea of camouflage is to so blend the object with its surroundings that it will not be seen. The coloring of many animals, birds and snakes is nature's camouflage by which they are hidden against their natural backgrounds.

Making Building Into a Hill.

If a building is to represent a low hill, says Bel Geddes, "it may be screened over with painted netting to which simulated foliage is attached. Railroad tracks, driveways, small buildings, parking lots and any other identifiable objects must also be blotted out by paint treatments and screening. Shadows cast by any high objects should be eliminated or broken up insofar as is possible.

The value of camouflage as a safeguard is indicated in the fact bombardiers must frequently sight their targets while at least five miles from them and must let loose their bombs within 50 seconds' time.

A further reason why even a slight scrambling of the contour of a landscape may cause the utter confusion of bombardiers lies in the fact that although aerial navigation is based upon mathematical calculation of celestial observations, bombardiers must continually check their line of flight by observing known landmarks. Through camouflage, therefore, not only are specific targets concealed by the apparent pattern of the surrounding areas is changed so that bombing crews often become confused and miss their objectives.

I saw plenty of camouflaged factory buildings in England as early as the fall of 1939. It would be wisdom over here if factory owners tried the same stunt. Even if only as a part of the spring redecorating. It costs nothing save the paint and the painter. And it could, in emergency, save a lot.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Hugh Johnson AJO, Ariz., April 17. Hugh Johnson worked harder than any other man I ever knew. He was better qualified by experience and education for the role of cosmic columnist than any other journalist in the country. He was so tenaciously devoted to his job that he would not take vacations and, as the paper says in the dispatch from Washington, he wrote his last column in bed a few hours before he died. Of course, he was a very exceptional man, but his diligence and his survival to the age of 59 under the strain of long hoursr and intense application to many tasks points the mawkish absurdity of the contention that the law of diminishing returns begins to run against the efficiency of human beings after they have put in five working days of eight hours each in a calendar week. This poisonous political fallacy, dreamed up by some soft-handed study-boy of the New Deal Ivy League in the early days of President Roosevelt's first administration, had in the beginning the worthy purpose of spreading the work and the pay among the many, but it never had any truthful basis and Johnson flouted it every day of his life, as do many other government administrators in Washington today. If the President, himself, worked only eight hours a day and only five days out of seven he would be so far behind in his job that as of today he would be boning up on the complexities of the middle months of his second term or thereabouts.

When Johnson was running NRA he often went 24 hours with no more than four or five hours off the job and after he left he had so much energy beyond the requirements of his newspaper job that he went bouncing all over the country by plane filling lecture dates, carried on a regular practice as a radio commentator and ground out good articles for such an exacting magazine as the Saturday Evening Post. He ran WPA in New York and once, having time on his hands, he holed up in the St. Regis hotel and from there ran the mile of dimes campaign for the infantile paralysis fund.

Loyal to Country He gave this country more service than he received credit for and, although he was personally on the outs with the President for some time before he died, he was still as loyal to the office of the presidency and to his country as he was the day he entered the military academy as an ungainly and slew-footed plebe. His patriotism was the pure, sentimental devotion of the professional Army and Navy which cannot express itself in words and persists through all disagreements with any policies of any passing administration composed of mere men.

I suppose we will have to charge against him the fact that he really made John L. Lewis back in his NRA days, but we can be very lenient, because Lewis then was playing the role of a leader of labor and a fighter for labor's rights and welfare. Hugh was quite a bit of a hero-worshiper and personal heroes have a way of letting a man down. In the same way, Hugh developed a terrific crush on Wendell Willkie and wrote two quite boastful articles which boiled down to "I saw him first." But one hero, at least, stood up in Hugh's estimation to the end. That is Bernard Baruch, to whom he maintained the devoted and respectful attitude of a youth to a wise and kindly elder. He would not take a drink in Baruch's presence and he savagely defended Baruch against insinuations that he had used his position for profit in tht last war..

In the early days of the New Deal Hugh was a belligerent New Dealer and gave aggressive service to the President when other men might have flinched as, for example, the time he took to the air to fight both Huey Long and Father Coughlin.

Sacrificed Himself Most men in politics were afraid of this vituperative and unscrupulous pair, but Johnson tore into them, knowing full well that they would fight him back with all the dirty tricks of which Huey was and the cunning Detroit politician remains a master. On terms of truth he would have licked them, but you can't box a rattlesnake according to Queensbury rules and Hugh just sacrificed himself for the New Deal and the President.

Hugh studied law while he was still a young soldier, he wrote boys' fiction for diversion and some profit, he helped run the draft in the other war, and after the war he ran a big industrial company and litigated a very complicated case in Chicago which concerned the water supply and deep engineering problems. It was this background of experience, plus his knack for expression, which qualified him so highly to discuss public problems. And it was his gift as an epithetician which brought his first renown in the days of NRA, when he said dead cats would come sailing his way, as they did, and spoke of the lawsuit which destroyed NRA as the sick-chicken case.

A Washington priest would seem to have lost a mission in Hugh's case. This priest helped Hugh prepare his remarks on Coughlin and they both chuckled mischievlously over the priest's proudest contribution which referred to Coughlin as a centaur. They were very close friends and one night in Washington this clergyman said in Hugh's presence that he had a deep belief that one day he would bring Hugh into the Catholic fold, for Johnson was a religious man within and his beliefs seemed not necessarily irreconcilable. But the paper says he will be buried in his native Episcopal faith.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

M. LAVAL The man who has less character than any of France's leaders since 1914 has been put in power over 40,000,000 persons to carry out the dictates of Adolf Hitler and the war plans of the German government.

The French long ago knew that Pierre Laval was unscrupulous. They had a lot of jokes about him, some of which have been written here before.

They said he was clever and sly enough to have his name spell the same, backwards or forwards.

They said that he was so suspicious he tapped his own telephone.

They had a word for him, "malin." There is no precise translation of it. It means shrewd unscrupulousness.

Like Mussolini he began his career as a violent Socialist but steadily swung to the right.

He was never a party man. He was always the lone wolf.

He cared not which master he served so long as he was given power.

His friendship with German aims is not new. He showed it in the Saar plebiscite and after.

He went to Italy in 1935 to make a special, and somewhat secret, peace with Mussolini. He was a pacifist in the first war. He refused to volunteer. He was drafted and served for a brief period. He obtained a medical discharge.

It must be remembered that in 1916 France went through a black period and might have made a secret peace but for pressure from England and this country. Laval was popular with the infantry regiments and officers which wished to quit the war.

In 1916 he made a speech in the chamber of deputies in which he said but that for Russia there would have been no war.

He was always the appeaser, always the fixer, always the "what-is-there-in-it-for-me-man," always the appeaser.

That is something of the man whom Hitler chose to try and swing the individualistic French people into the new order which is not so popular now that the Germans have shown in Norway, Greece, Rumania and Hungary what is means.

The new order is not now in such good odor.

GENERAL PETAIN The French people trusted General Petain. They respected him as well. The general was the symbol of victory in the first war.

They believed in him. He had sustained them before.

As a matter of strict record the old general was never a friend of the Republican idea of government. Had it not been for the fact that he personally disliked the Germans he might have accepted the German Fascist form of government. He did not, and does not, believe in democratic government. But he does not like the Germans.

The Germans knew that as long as Petain headed the Vichy government the people of occupied and of unoccupied France would be more docile and less likely to explode.

They took advantage of the trust the people had in Petain to keep that nation orderly and to hold down sabotage.

Even now they will keep Petain as a symbol. And Petain, instead of resigning, indicates he will remain and speak in behalf of the Laval government. He is a puzzling man even when one considers that he has headed a defeated and prostrate nation.

Laval's rumored cabinet is meaningless. It contains no outstanding name. It does not include any of the known Fascists of the period before the war.

"LAVALUATION" The German decision to elevate Laval means something. It may have a connection with the belief the United Nations will attempt an invasion of France this summer. (One cannot yet see how or with what, but the Germans may fear it.)

It undoubtedly means the French fleet will be put to use by the Germans in their greatest offensive of the war, perhaps a joint offensive in which Japan strikes at Australia and the Manchurian side of Russia while Germany smashes at the British Isles and at the eastern Russian front.

That is the most probable move.

That Ambassador Leahy has more exact information for our State Department must be taken for granted. He probably cannot deliver it until he leaves France.

Our next move must be a swift one.

We must take Martinique and Guadaloupe. Look at your maps. It will surprise you how close they are to us.

Dakar will become a new front. That place, in German hands, and its harbor basing a German fleet, would imperil South America and the seas about it.

This is a war for survival.

No one can be foolish enough to consider it otherwise.

We cannot make a peace or reach an "understanding."

It must be won.

Meanwhile, it will be of consuming and paramount interest to watch France and her course. And the reaction of the people to Laval.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

My Dear Louise:

One of the popular magazines is printing a series of articles about a businessman who collects art.

He has made a great fortune out of a patent medicine he invented, and his art collection is valued at $20,000,000, but he is chiefly noted for the venomous and insulting letters he writes—especially in replying to people of importance who have asked to see his pictures.

According to the articles, he is bitterly prejudiced against the high-born, against celebrities, and against those who were born rich—which usually, but not always, means aristocrats. He can tolerate rich men, however, if they got the money, as he did, by their own industry, lucky breaks and business shrewdness.

It is hardly necessary to add that he was born in poverty, in a tough neighborhood, and fought and worked his way to the top.

Now all of this concerns you only as it calls attention to how fortunate you are—so far.

You have the true American concept of equality—that as all men are considered innocent until proven guilty, so all are equal until they show they are not.

With the exception of physical deformity, the greatest misfortune that can befall anybody is the feeling of class-conscious inferiority.

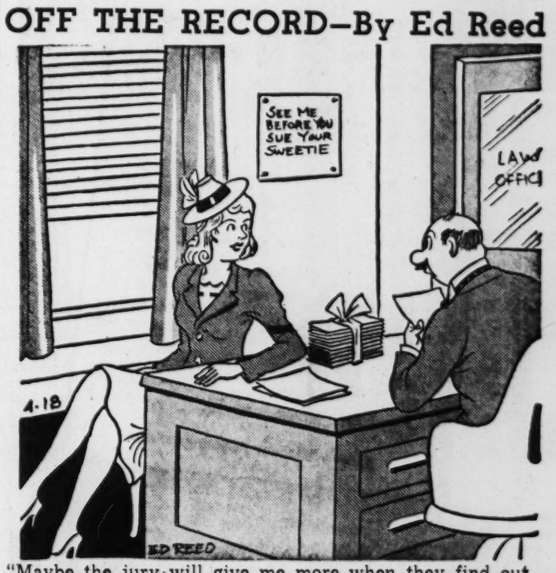

No other feeling of which man is capable has the power of class prejudice. It is stronger than religious prejudice or race prejudice, for men of the same race and religion may hate one another for being in different social classes. And the class-conscious who are made to feel inferior are embittered for life, and neither wealth nor fame can heal their hurt.

Man's equality with man made America great. It doesn't mean that men are equal in all particulars, or merely equal before the law. It means that no man is born to jerk a forelock to another, or meekly endure another's scorn. It means that every man, however poor and humble his origin, and no matter how lowly his present state, is still blessed with the dignity of manhood and may hold up his head and feel respectable.

You'll always find, as you do in school, that some people are superior to you and some inferior. That doesn't matter. The thing to avoid as a pestilence is the feeling of class. That is poison. One kind will make you a silly snob; the other will embitter your whole life.

Love, DAD.

Clean Up and Paint Up and Avoid Fires.

Atlanta's annual Clean Up, Paint Up, Plant Up and Fire Prevention campaign starts tomorrow, with the Women's Chamber of Commerce running it and Mrs. Carolyn Seivers working as chairman for the fifth time "a-running."

Ordinarily this column does not devote itself — except under compulsion from a friend — better looking than the run-of-the-mine woman with a mission in life and a duty to perform. Its conductor's experience has shown that while the purpose of the club may be most worthy and have the approval of the Governor and mayor by official proclamation the subject matter makes most uninteresting reading.

But I do feel impelled, without even a suggestion, to draw attention to this annual campaign. In the first place, because it's a good idea. Next, because I like Mrs. Seivers, who is secretary to Carling Dinkler and his chain of hotels and a most efficient person. What she doesn't know she can find out—and does. And calls you back.

They're talking about "Victory" gardens this year, but I can't be a fellow traveler on that, except just so far.

There's been a lot of stuff in the American press about plowing up front lawns and sowing them in onions and potatoes and maybe spaghetti, but I understand the Department of Agriculture has frowned upon that. Because an enthusiastic front lawn gardener, anxious to show his neighbors what a farmer he is, is likely to use $14 worth of fertilizer to raise —he hopes—$3 worth of beans. And the government says fertilizer isn't so plentiful and is needed by the sho-nuff dirt farmers to raise sho-nuff crops.

But I'll travel along with the Women's Chamber of Commerce on clean up and paint up and fire prevention. I am going to clean up our back yard and convert an accumulation of decayed benches and swings into kindling for next winter. I am going to invest in a quart or so of white paint and make the outdoor chairs look like alabaster. And I'm going to quit throwing smouldering cigaret stubs into the wastebasket full of material from Hollywood, which reaches my home after being re-addressed several times by a patient post office.

Rails of street car lines in Atlanta, it is reported, have been given to the federal government by the Georgia Power Company and will be removed by WPA workers. Which will be fine for all concerned. Unless the time comes when there's no gasoline and no rubber for bus tires and the company would like to fall back on electricity from its many big plants.

I hope they take the rails from Peachtree road pretty soon. No electric street cars—on rails—ply there any more. There are trackless trolleys to Buckhead and Oglethorpe, which run on rubber tires and use "juice" from double overhead wires.

But the oil rails still are there, and rather high above the paving in spots, presenting a menace to automobile drivers, especially in wet weather.

Furthermore, if the rails are taken up it will involve quite a lot of repaving—and Peachtree road can use quite a lot of that. It is in bad condition, neglected by the county, perhaps from lack of funds to improve it.

It may be that other main traveled roads are just as bad. But I'm thinking of the one I travel. Other folk can put up their own hollers.

Next to discovering that you've put your undershirt on backwards so the high side is in front and sticking up above your collar, what is more painful than to type, by the hunt and pick system, a 500-word epic about an approaching convention, full of names and initials, and then learn you have put that important carbon paper in the machine the wrong way?

It is true you have a copy and the reverse might be available, by carefully splitting the paper and using a mirror. But that is inconvenient.

Question from a contributor who signs himself "Jess Curious," the coward.

"Fifteen women were waiting for a trolley. Fourteen of them each had a fare token handy. The 15th had only a $10 bill. Which woman was first to board the trolley?"

You can do your own guessing. But I decline to take part in the controversy. Because I never knew one woman, to say nothing of 14, having a fare token handy. I think this guy made it all up.

Three Georgia Generals Are in Hands of Japs

Capture on Bataan Reported in Announcement by U. S.

Three generals from Georgia yesterday were reported captured on Bataan peninsula.

Brigadier General William E. Brougher, of Decatur, one of the first to face the Japanese; Brigadier General Arnold J. Funk, of Douglas, and Major General Edward P. King, of Atlanta, believed to be the highest ranking officer on Bataan, were "presumably in the hands of the enemy," the War Department reported.

Mrs. Brougher, who lives at 326 Adams street, said it was a great relief to learn of her husband's capture adding, "It could have been worse, you know."

"My husband's division of infantry was right at the tip of the peninsula," Mrs. Brougher said, "and it was one of the first to engage in actual fighting against the Japs."

Fought in France.

A graduate of Mississippi State College, General Brougher entered the Army in 1911 and fought in France with the 87th Division as a major. The Broughers have two daughters, both Agnes Scott students.

General King, who is affectionately known as "Ned," is a brother of J. Olmstead King. The general's wife is staying with Mr. and Mrs. King at 736 Piedmont avenue.

General King was reported to have made an offer of surrender last week. This came through a Japanese communique, which was not confirmed by the United States.

A graduate of the University of Georgia, King has been in the Philippines more than two years, having been sent there to take command of Fort Stotsenburg, north of Manila.

He wears the Distinguished Service Medal, which he won in the first World War for his work in artillery.

5 Years in Benning.

General Funk spent five years at Fort Benning and, while there, married Sue Thrasher, of Douglas, Ga. The mother of Mrs. Funk said her daughter had been to the Philippines with General Funk, but returned before the Japanese attac. and is now living at Sarasota, Fla.

Funk was promoted by General MacArthur from colonel to brigadier general for exceptional service after the attack on the Philippines.

Funk was instructor at the University of Georgia for two years before leaving in 1938 for Fort Leavenworth. He was sent to Manila in 1939.

He enlisted as a private in the World War I and returned from France a captain.

ON BATAAN — Brigadier General William E. Brougher, of Decatur, was reported captured on Bataan yesterday. Mrs. Brougher was relieved. "It could have been worse," she said.

wounded in Bataan, as well as numbers of noncombatant units. The 68 Army nurses who had been in Bataan and a relatively small number of troops were evacuated to Corregidor.

Filipinos Praised.

Issuing the communique at his press conference, Secretary of War Stimson praised the bravery of the Filipino soldiers and civilians and announced that in recognition of their loyalty the Regular Army Air Forces would enlist Filipino youths as aviation cadets, the only exception to the regulation that aviation cadets must be United States citizens. Filipino pilots, he said, particularly have "shown great skill and courage."

Recalling that American policy in the Philippines since the islands came into this country's possession after the war with Spain has been consistently one of fostering the development of a democratic form of government with the view to eventual independence of the commonwealth, Stimson added:

"They have vindicated our faith in them in these last few months by the courage and steadfastness they have shown."

Three Georgians Missing.

Among the generals presumably captured by the Japanese in Bataan were Major General Edward P. King Jr., of Atlanta, Ga., the brilliant artilleryman whose skill was a principal factor in the long defense of the peninsula, and Major General Albert M. Jones, of Quincy, Mass., who commanded the southern wing of General Douglas MacArthur's army in the early weeks of the war, receiving the Distinguished Service Cross for heroism.

(Other general officers from Georgia in Bataan on April 9 and unreported since then are Brigadier Generals Arnold J. Funk, of 310 Madison avenue, Douglas, and Brigadier General William E. Brougher, 150 Clairmont avenue, Decatur.)

Brigadier Generals Fidel V. Segundo and Vicente Lim, both graduates of West Point, and Brigadier General Luther R. Stevens, American-born citizen of the commonwealth and veteran Philippine constabulary officer, were among the officers of the Philippine army listed as probable prisoners.

There has been no communication between Corregidor and Bataan for more than a week, the communique said, and no reports were received about casualties during the last few days of fighting on the peninsula, but losses probably were heavy on both sides.

Total Treasury Debt Passes 70 Billion Dollars

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP) The Treasury revealed today its total debt has climbed past $70,000,000,000.

After recording officially the recent sale of $1,500,000,000 of short-term certificates of indebtedness, the Treasury said its debt, including direct obligations of the Treasury and Treasury-guaranteed obligations of governmental corporations, reached $70,189,714,908 on April 15.

Reflecting the heavy borrowing that has been necessitated by the war program, this total was $17,000,000,000 bigger than a year ago.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

ENEMIES OF JESUS.

Sunday's lesson, Luke 11:14-54 and 13:31-35, is an amazing record of the growing tension in the groups round about Jesus, due to the shrew, clever schemes of false teachers, principally the Pharisees. Let us remember that Jesus is still in the land of Perea, east of the Jordan, on his final journey to Jerusalem. It is the winter preceding His crucifixion, A. D. 30.

Jesus had exposed His critics by refuting the charge that His healing of the dumb demoniac was due to His league with Beelzebub. Invited now to dine at a certain Pharisee's house, His enemies criticized His for not having washed His hands before eating. This criticism was based, of course, upon the Jewish custom of dipping one's hands in water before eating, and between each course, for ceremonial purification. Note carefully that this custom had solely to do with ceremonialism.

And not only does this criticsm have to do with the incident at the Pharisee's house, during this particular meal, but before and after that incident the enemies of Jesus were hurling their bitter attacks upon the Son of God, chiefly in the matter of His refusal to adhere to their ritual.

And the Lord Jesus left no stone unturned in His answers. He showed the utter sham of it all—the sham and shame of their behavior, their ambition and their patriotism. Hear Him:

"Now do ye Pharisees make clean the outside of the cup and the platter; but your inward part is full of ravening and wickedness. Ye fools, did not He that made that which is without make that which is within also? But rather give alms of such things as ye have; and, behold, all things are clean unto you. But woe unto you, Pharisees! for ye tithe mint and rue and all manner of herbs, and pass over judgment and the love of God; these ought ye to have done, and not to leave thet other undone. Woe unto you, Pharisees! for ye love the uppermost seats in the synagogues, and greetings in the markets. Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye are as graves which appear not, and the men that walk over them are not aware of them. Woe unto you also, ye lawyers! for ye lade men with burdens grievous to be borne, and ye yourselves touch not the burdens with one of your fingers. Woe unto you! for ye build the sepulchres of the prophets, and your fathers killed them."

And now look at the golden text for Sunday's lesson: "He that is not with Me is against Me; and he that gathereth not with Me scattereth," Luke 11:23.

What is the lesson of the lesson for you and me and every other Christian in the world today? This: Let us carefully and prayerfully examine our own hearts, lest there be some sinful sham and shame in our own attitude—lest we, too, be regarded as the enemies of Jesus.

Special Program Will Be Held at College Sunday.

Six Georgia Military Academy cadets will be commissioned in the Reserve Corps in a special program at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon on the parade ground at the college, Colonel William R. Brewster, president, announced yesterday.

Major General William Bryden, Fourth Corps Area commandant, will review the G. M. A. battalion as part of the exercises.

Cadets who will receive commissions are Clarence F. Horton, of San Antonio, Texas; Murle Murphy, of College Park; Alfrew Brown, of Concord, N. C.; Courtland Krams, of Fort Benning, and Joseph P. Padgett and Clyde Holt Edwards, both of Atlanta.

Spring Session Of Bird Club To Open Today

Ornithological Society To Hold Meeting at Milledgeville.

Bird lovers will gather today in Milledgeville for a two-day session of the Georgia Ornithological Society, field trips, a business session and social functions to feature the spring session.

The program as arranged by Dr. Eugene P. Odum, of the department of zoology of the University of Georgia, will include a field trip Saturday forenoon to the Piedmont national wildlife refuge at Round Oak, under the leadership of Raymond Fleetwood, manager of the refuge. A picnic lunch will be served at noon and in the afternoon, a business session of the club will be held, presided over by Harold Jones, of Berry Schools, president of the club.

Saturday night the visitors will be entertained at dinner at G. S. C. W., the speakers at this occasion including Herbert L. Stoddard, of Thomasville, widely known authority on quail and other game birds, and E. V. Konakek, also of Thomasville. A motion picture of Florida bird life will also be shown.

On Sunday, field trips will be made under sponsorship of the Milledgeville Bird Club, hosts to the convention.

Those who will attend from Atlanta will include Mrs. Lewis Francis Gordon, regional vice president of the Ornithological Society; Ray Werner, treasurer, and Mrs. Werner, and Dr. Hugh Harris, president of the Atlanta Bird Club, and Mrs. Harris.

Columbus Hospital Is Granted $58,000

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

COLUMBUS, Ga., April 17.—The City hospital received $58,000 for improvements as one of the two federal grants announced in Washington. The original application for improvement made nearly a year ago, was for approximately a million dollars, but there have since been several revisions and reductions.

City Manager Marshall Morton said that the grant will undoubtedly be accepted but it is not yet known for what the $58,000 is to be used in connection with hospital improvements.

1942 Opera May Be Last For Duration

Special Prices Are Offered Members of Armed Service.

Atlanta, long boastful of its annual season of Metropolitan opera, today is on the eve of what appears to be its final opera festival for the duration.

Coupled with reports of "very slow" ticket sales and the fact traveling theatrical units are finding it more and more difficult to obtain baggage cars necessary to transport costume and scenery because of Army needs, Marvin McDonald, manager of the Atlanta opera season, declared last night that it was extremely doubtful that there would be opera sung by Met stars here next year.'

Would Be Last.

"If the Music Club sustains a loss in the guarantee of the opera this year, they will not consider opera a good risk for next year," McDonald predicted. "In that case, this opera season would be the last until the war is over."

McDonald announced last night that special prices for soldiers, sailors and marines who wish to attend the operas will be in effect Tuesday night for "Carmen" and Thursday Night when "The Daughter of the Regiment" will be sung.

Soldiers' seats will be in the downstairs orchestra section. They will be priced at $2.20 instead of the established $4.40 price. There will be no soldier price seats available for "The Barber of Seville" Wednesday night, as this is an All-Star Concert Series attraction.

Many Letters.

Many soldiers have written USO headquarters asking if any arrangements had been made for special prices for them at the opera, and emphasizing the fact they had but $21 per month pay.

Responding to these appeals, many Atlantans have sent checks to the Atlanta Defense Recreation Center office in the Kimball House furnishing money to buy tickets for soldiers. But, it was pointed out last night, enough money has not yet been received to take care of all requests. The Recreation Center has already promised to sleep and feed soldiers who wish to attend the operas.

Rev. Abbey Talks To Young People

The Rev. Vere Abbey, general secretary of the Christian Endeavor Union in India, Ceylon and Burma for many years, is principal speaker in the two-day rally of Georgia Christian Endeavor members, which opened last night at the First Christian church.

Approximately 750 young people in this section attended the meeting, sponsored by the state union, of which Harlow Autrey is president, and the Atlanta union, headed by J. L. Carman.

The Rev. and Mrs. Abbey have been in this country about a year and are touring the country conducting special Christian Endeavor services.

4 Cobb Escapees Are Recaptured

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

MARIETTA, Ga., April 17. — Four Cobb county convicts escaped Wednesday night, but all were recaptured, officers state.

The escapees were listed by officials as Walter Timmons, William Jacobs, Hugh Nash and Gerald Waldon, the latter two being listed as trusties.

Timmons and Jacobs escaped at different times and the two trusties later fled in a truck, officers said.

Officers Jim Black and Lee Strickland and County Warden John Hood participated in the recapture of the men.

Hugh Johnson Given A Soldier's Burial

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP) Hugh S. Johnson was given a soldier's burial in Arlington National cemetery today.

A battery of artillery measured off with one-minute fire the time it took for the military cortege to march from the cemetery chapel to the grave at the foot of the amphitheater hill. There, with ranks of troops drawn up, a squad fired a volley and a bugler sounded taps as the casket of the World War brigadier general, one-time NRA administrator and newspaper columnist was lowered into the grave.

Johnson 59, years old, died of pneumonia Wednesday after an illness so brief he had written his last column on the previous day.

GOEBBELS BREAKS DRUM.

Breaking a drum, a 'cello and a trombone, Goebbels, an eight-foot crocodile, fell into the orchestra pit in a London theater. The woman trainer of six crocodiles used in the act retrieved the animal through the orchestra door, and the act continued.

War To Bring More Savings, Says Executive

Chicagoan Tells Parley Here To Expect Blanket Price Ceilings.

"Savings will increase during the war," Morton Bodfish, of Chicago, executive vice president of the United State Savings and Loan League, said here yesterday, "because the people won't have as many things to buy."

"That is true in Great Britain," Bodfish added, "and it presages an increase in this country. As a result of the savings and the purchase of war bonds and stamps there will be no reason for the government to take over savings accounts as loans. I see no possibility of such action."

A change in the financial setup of the nation is foreseen by Bodfish, who was here to attend the joint convention of the Georgia and Southeastern Leagues and the Federal Home Loan Bank of Winston-Salem, N. C.

"I think we will see price ceilings on all goods, stabilization of wages and changes in agricultural wages and prices within the next 60 days," Bodfish said.

"Custodians of the people's money face three choices: indecision, retrenchment, or action. I think they are voting for action."

President O. K. LaRoque, president of the Federal Home Loan Bank at Winston-Salem, N. C., urged building, savings and loan associations not to relax efforts to encourage saving despite the fact that war conditions will decrease sound mortgage investments.

In his speech at the convention, which is being held at the Biltmore hotel, LaRoque said, "We are faced with boom production, with a trend toward depression standards of living."

Early Allied Invasion Of Continent Is Asked

A resolution asking Allied war commanders for an early invasion of the European continent "that would save millions of lives and presage a new era of freedom" was adopted by the American Communications Association in session here yesterday.

The convention, which closed last night after a week-long meeting at the Ansley hotel, unanimously approved the resolution after they heard a cabled message from Douglas MacArthur in appreciation for a pledge of support passed previously by the association.

Student Strike Ends In Mexico City

Students at Mexico City have accepted the offer of President Avila Comacho to mediate a strike against Secretary of Education Vejar Vazquez. The strike, attributed to Communists seeking to force the official's resignation, caused several riots, including a street fight in which a policeman was killed. On several occasions firemen were called on to use their fire hose to quell disturbances.

Californian Uneasy, Asks Aid of Atlanta

A resident of Long Beach, Cal., who wants to be emphatically warned if and when Japanese planes approach his city, has asked The Constitution to help him find a whistle once used by an Atlanta iron foundry.

In his letter, the Californian, who does not sign his name, says:

"My father heard Arthur Connally, chief of police in your city of other days, tell John Keely, a merchant, that when Butler's Iron Foundry whistle blew, he knew 'Hell stood at attention, thinking the Devil had an important paper to read.'

"Could that old whistle be located and loaned to our highly esteemed police chief of Long Beach for duration of this Jap entertainment?

"Butler's foundry, between King street and Martin's alley, was a few blocks from Arthur Connally's home and ours. Nothing before or since could compare to its solemn edification of sound."

Missing Ensign Praised in Letter

A letter praising Ensign William Henry Harris, reported missing after his vessel was sunk in the western Pacific, was received yesterday by his mother, Mrs. Helen C. Harris, of 534 Ponce de Leon court, Decatur.

The letter, from Lieutenant Commander H. P. Smith, under whom Ensign Harris served, told Mrs. Harris of the gallant action of her son while the vessel was under fire and sinking, and of how he was rescued by another vessel, which was later sunk during the battle.

Commander Smith said the crew of his stricken vessel was picked up by several different resuce boats, and that he was not with Ensign Harris when the second vessel was sunk.

Ensign Harris was reported missing by naval officials on March 25, "following action in the line of duty." He was graduated from the first Naval Officers Training school in July, 1940.

Nelsou Warns Editors To Be Fair to Public

NEW YORK, April 17.—(AP)—Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, told the nation's editors tonight they had the "grevest responsibility" ever placed upon them with the American people depending that they would "put the survival of this country and its heritage of freedom, above every other consideration on earth for the duration of the war."

In ad address prepared for the annual banquet of the American Society of Newspaper Editors at the Waldolf-Astoria hotel, Nelson said:

"The people of America are depending on you to be fair—to put the good of the whole country ahead of any personal or partisan interest. They are depending on you to give them the facts—all of the facts, within the limits imposed by military necessity, and not just selected facts arranged to prove a case. They are depending on you to understand what is happening and to present an undistorted picture."

Man Who Fled Nazi Hangman Is Visitor Here

Dr. Palyi Was Blamed for Starting German Inflation.

By AL SHARP.

Dr. Melchior Palyi, of Chicago, is a German with a sense of humor. That is only right, because Dr. Palyi left the Reich just one step ahead of Hitler's hangman when that gentleman was working overtime.

Dr. Palyi was chief economist of the Deutschbank at the time and advisor to the Reichsbank—"a $1-a-year man, if you please" explained Palyi, "but I didn't even get the dollar."

That was in 1933. The Reichstag was burned March 6, 1933. Dr. Palyi saw trouble ahead. He went to Paris to attend an International Chamber of Commerce convention March 18. He kept going.

Dr. Palyi makes no bones about his being tagged for the hangman.

"A pro-Nazi magazine printed an article about me a few days before I left. It showed I was a bad boy as far as Hitler was concerned. In fact, the article accused me of starting the inflation which passed the breaking point in 1937," he said.

"I knew then that I had to leave. I don't think I would have been in a concentration camp now—no, but I might have been hanging from some tree."

"If the Reich gets France, it will make little difference as far as the economic situation is concerned," he said. "Germany will get 1,000,000 more men to work for her, but gold is no good any more. The country can't trade with any other country."

Dr. Palyi, a visiting professor at the University of Wisconsin, has been back to Germany once since he left.

He was here yesterday to attend the convention of the Southeastern Group of the United States Savings and Loan League.

Man Too Old To Fight Gives Rifle to U. S.

Austell Resident Feels Gun Good Enough To Pick Off Jap.

Imbued with patriotic pep, but "too old to fight," white-haired J. L. Langford figured his rifle of Jesse James vintage was still good enough to help the State Guard.

The 81-year-old retired railroad man, of Austell, read about the federal government calling in the rifles issued the State Guards and brought his .38 caliber Winchester to military headquarters at the capitol.

"I'm too old to fight," he told Brigadier General Sion B. Hawkins, state military director, "so I'm giving this to you. If the Japs or the Germans come over I'll pick them off with my sawed-off shotgun."

He said some of his friends spied him lugging the heavy old rifle and joshed him about hunting the Japs.

"No, sir," he said he told them, "I'm going to give this to my Uncle Sam."

Langford proudly related that he had a son, Berry, in the Army.

Hawkins thanked Langford for the rifle and told him his gift "exemplified the spirit of true American patriotism."

Gene Eckman To Return Home for School Work

Gene Eckman, the Atlanta youngster who was chosen after a nation-wide search to play the role of "Jody" in "The Yearling," will return to this city to continue his schooling until M-G-M decides to resume production of the screen play, it was announced yesterday.

"The Yearling," begun in Florida "cracker" country last spring with Spencer Tracy in the leading role, will not be made until the war is over, Metro officials announced.

1-Cent Boost In Florida Milk Price Sought

Surprise Petition Presented at Hearing on Differential.

MIAMI, Fla., April 17.—(AP)—A meeting of the State Milk Control Board today to consider a proposed two-cent differential in home delivery and store-purchased milk was converted by a surprise petition into a hearing for a one-cent increase to 19 cents a quart.

Vincent C. Giblin, attorney representing the Dade County Federation of Women's Clubs and ten other organizations, heatedly protested consideration of the price increase. He declared there had been no advance notice of the petition, as required by law, and it did not pertain to the purpose for which the meeting was called.

The Dade-Broward Milk Asssociation asked the price rise, declaring feed cost had climbed about 24 per cent since last August.

Witnesses testifying on behalf of the differential declared milk prices already are too high and many families with low income would be improved by a lower price and resultant greater sales volume, they said.

MONTEZUMA, Ga., April 17. — More than 3,000 garments were sent to National Red Cross headquarters in the last quota by the Macon County chapter of the organization, Mrs. C. F. The Red Cross headquarters remain open during the week, and five machines are available to women who care to drop in and sew for an hour or more when downtown.

Benning's 'Jumping Chaplain' Shares Perils of Paratroopers

When the Rev. Raymond S. Hall was assigned to parachute troops at Fort Benning, he felt that a chaplain should share the same dangers as his men—so he became a "jumping chaplain."

Until his first jump, Hall had never been in a plane—and he still has never landed in one.

The Rev. Hall, formerly rector of St. John's Episcopal church in Lowell, Mass., is reported to be the Army's first chaplain to jump with paratroops.

When he came to Benning after being commissioned in December, there was nothing in the regulations about a chaplain jumping. It took a bit of arguing but he obtained permission to take the five-week Paratrooper's training course.

After the first week "they had to drag me out of bed in the morning," he says now, recalling the stiff physical strain on long little-used muscles. But Hall was captain of the swimming team when he attended Brown University and he came through in fine order.

He is married and has two children. And he is just a bit concerned about one of them, a boy of five. The youngster is emulating his daddy as best he can by jumping off tables or anything else handy he can get onto.

Two Musicals, Romance Story At Shows Here

Reviewers Find Bills Highly Entertaining, Full of Comedy.

Accentuating music and beauty—both pastoral and feminine—rather than drama, "Song of the Islands," a musical comedy in technicolor, starring Betty Grable, Victor Mature and Jack Oakie, began a week's run yesterday at the Fox theater.

The scene of the story is Ohmi Ona, virtually a microscopic island in the Hawaiian group, jointly owned by a millionaire Chicago cattleman, played by James Barbier, and an Irish philosopher, content to enjoy the bounties of nature, played by Thomas Mitchell. The cattleman uses his half of the island as a ranch while the Irishman shares his half with the Hawaiian natives.

Barbier needs harbor facilities for the export of his cattle and as his portion of the island is devoid of deep water coves he tries to buy out the staid old Irishman. Failing in this, the cattleman sends his son, Victor Mature, to eliminate the bottleneck. He does not reckon with the charm and allure of Mitchell's daughter, Betty Grable, however, and romantic complications almost queer the deal.

The story is weak but the music and scenery are good and Betty is above par in her performance. Jack Oakie is good as the Texas rancher, who apparently knows more about cows than women. Music in the Hawaiian style is provided by Harry Owens and his Royal Hawaiians.

Newsreel and short subjects complete the bill.

Young Folks Star In 'Born To Sing'

The young folks are stars in the first-run production, "Born To Sing," which opened Thursday at the Rhodes.

The plot deals with a young girl singer, Virginia Weidler, who wishes to prove her father's music is good, so produces a show with it. She sings and dances with no little talent, and is ably assisted by Ray McDonald, a promising young tap dancer who everybody will like, especially the kids.

Leo Gorcey, of "Dead End" fame, furnishes the main comedy role.

Youngsters who like to see youngsters in the movies and oldsters who like musical pictures can enjoy "Born to Sing."

Tangled Romance At Roxy Theater

"Rings on Her Fingers," now playing at the Roxy, is a story of tangled romance that starts when Laird Cregar and Spring Byington, scheming to "catch" a millionaire, decide beautiful Gene Tierney shall be the bait.

They whisk her from her job as a department store worker and "throw her" at the victim, Henry Fonda, who, it turns out, isn't a millionaire at all, but a plugging accountant.

There is good comedy and romance as everybody finally learns who everybody else is, and finds that it doesn't cause the romance to fall short.

Frank Orth, as a detective makes an excellent comedy character, and, all in all, "Rings on Her Finger" makes good light entertainment. —D. B.

FARMER BOY SEES WILD FLOWERS—Roy Buice, 7-year-old farm boy, learned some things about wild flowers which grow in the woods on his father's farm out on the Lawrenceville highway. He discovered seven new ways for making money out of those woods at the Georgia Botanical Society Wild Flower Show.

Another Way To Make Money In the Woods Taught at Show

Roy Buice, a seven-year-old farm boy from near Lawrenceville, and his grandpa learned something yesterday when they came to Atlanta. They learned how they can get new income from their farm woods. It's something of a new development for the war garden projects, but this whole idea revolves around one thing—keeping fire out of farm woods.

Roy and his grandpa might have walked into their woods a month ago just after fire had burned the pines and thought—"Oh, that's a pity."

But now that they've seen the Georgia Botanical Society Wild Flower show at Sears' Farmers' market they'd recognize this fire as a tragedy.

For this show taught them seven new ways of making money out of their woods. Fire, it was pointed out, really plays havoc with the woods for it runs the birds away, causes the soil to erode and thus prevents growth of numerous valuable wild plants, in addition to the damage to the trees themselves. Fire makes the insects flee, nature's beauty vanish, and change for the farmer's pocket fly away.

The Wild Flower show, which is open to the public throughout next week, gives the farmers ideas on seven new sources for income: Live plants, handicraft materials, dried decorative material for vases, dried material for Christmas decorations, evergreens and berries for Christmas decorations, juices and drinks and jellies, and nuts and seeds for food and planting.

C. H. Bishop, market manager, believes much progress will be made when persons really know what exists in their woods, and how to use it as well as to admire its beauty. The Georgia Botanical Society, with Eugene S. Heath as president, sponsors the show.

STRIKE PLAYS UP NOISE.

Ear-piercing engine screeches were the feature of a one-hour protest strike staged by railroad men in Mexico to show their solidarity with the people of Mexico in the nation-wide complaint against the high cost of living and the "refusal of capital to improve the condition of workers." The workers seek a 35 per cent increase on all salaries below $500 a month, and a smaller increase on salaries above that amount.

Vinson Defeats Effort To Block War Profits Action

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP)—An attempt to block action by the house naval committee on war profits and labor legislation for at least a month was defeated by a nine-to-nine vote today, demonstrating with new force the sharp cleavage of congressional opinion on the issues.

WARNS—Disastrous results will follow public acceptance of tire bootlegging, John E. Hamm, deputy administrator and general manager of the Office of Price Administration, told Atlantans yesterday.

The delay was proposed by Representative Flaherty, Democrat, Massachusetts, and opposed by Chairman Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, who told the members, "these issues are so dominant that they are going to be prevailing in every congressional district by election time."

Flaherty urged delay on the grounds that President Roosevelt might work out some program disposing of the issues.

Executive Action.

"We're all aware," he said, "of the possibility of executive action on all phases of this legislation. Negotiations to that end are now going on and rejection of this bill might have a bad effect on those deliberations."

"And what effect would it have if we reported it up?" countered Vinson, drawing no reply.

By agreement, however, the committee decided to defer a vote for 10 days on Vinson's measure calling for a percentage limitation on war profits, suspension of the 40-hour week law, and preservation of the status-quo of unions in plants handling Army and Navy contracts.

Meanwhile, the House Judiciary Committee, on a new tack, began consideration of a measure to make unions subject to prosecution under the anti-trust laws, and heard a succession of spokesmen for farm groups contend that control of the nation's food supplies soon may pass into the hands of labor leaders.

The bill, introduced by Representative Monroney, Democrat, Oklahoma, would make it illegal for unions to join with any employer or any non-labor group in a conspiracy to fix prices, allocate customers, restrict production, eliminate competing employes, attempt to monopolize any part of trade or commerce, or to restrain competition.

Secret Payments.

It also would forbid unions to force employers to hire "unnecessary" labor; bar secret payments by employers to unions or their agents, and outlaw jurisdictional strikes in plants where a union had been certified to carry on collective bargaining for the employes.

One of today's witnesses, W. P. Davis, of Reading, Mass., manager of the New England Milk Producers' Association, accused John L. Lewis of "seeking to throttle the freedom of the farmers" by attempting to bring them into his United Mine Workers Union (CIO).

"This move implies the possibilities of social revolution under one-man dictatorship of America," he told the committee. ". . . Beyond this immediate project lies the possibility of the Lewis grip extending into every phase of the economic and social life of the country."

Over-All Price Control Plan Is Proposed

OPA Leader Predicts System Would Achieve Total Effort.

An over-all price control system which would fix the top price on everything Americans buy would be a help in "achieving total war effort" Deputy Administrator John E. Hamm, of the Office of Price Administration, said yesterday.

But such a system, the kind the totalitarian nations started with and England is putting into practice, would not be "feasible" until the nation effected stabilization of wage levels, either an effective voluntary or compulsory system of investing savings in war bonds and securities, and changes in existing tax laws, Hamm said.

The 34-year-old professional economist, a veteran of the old NRA effort to stabilize economic conditions, came to Atlanta to confer with regional OPA authorities. He has been making a trip about the country for regional conference and is on his way back to Washington.

Hamm predicted "disastrous results" if the American public accepts tire bootlegging as calmly as it did prohibition evasion and pointed out that a single bootlegged tire might tie up a doctor's car, a police car or a fire truck.

"There is a tremendous amount of public confusion as to how serious the rubber situation is," Hamm said. "They're included to build up utterly false hopes on the basis of some optimistic statement they may read. The rubber situation is critical. We have on our shelves now all the tires we are likely to get for the duration of the war."

The deputy administrator said the public has been "building up too much hope about synthetic rubber."

Gen. MacArthur Cables Georgian

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 17.—(AP) Major General Robert J. Travis, retired, former commander of the Fifthy-fifth Field Artillery Brigade, cabled his friend General Douglas MacArthur "My heart is with you."

Back came this cable from MacArthur in Australia:

"Thanks. I wish the rest of you were here with me, too."

Soldiers To Attend Services at Quitman

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

QUITMAN, Ga., April 17.—Local churches invited soldiers from the auxiliary landing field camp south of Quitman to attend services and be invited to dinner next Sunday in Quitman homes. It was planned for all the churches to share in this, but Baptist homes wanted all the 100 soldiers who will be on leave, so the other churches will invite htem next Sunday week.

Major R. L. Alexander, chaplain, will preach at the Baptist church morning service. The men are from the Twentieth Regiment Engineers assigned to building the emergency landing field here.

"DON'T BE A CHUMP, CHIMP——" Those were the words of Miss Joyce Adair, who tried to console Jimmy Chimpanzee after Jimmy's companion, Margie Chimpanzee, had been taken into custody by a Fulton county bailiff on bail trover proceedings.

'Blind Justice,' Not Love, Brings Pain To Young Jim This Spring

Jimmy is broken-hearted.

He is, in fact, humiliated and disgraced, for his girl friend, Margie, has been taken away.

"Margie's not a bad girl," Jimmy sadly said last night as he talked about the big, bad officer, armed with a long legal paper of some kind who grabbed Margie and carried her off.

Jimmy's full name is Jimmy Chimpanzee, while Margie's is Margie Chimpanzee.

Jimmy and Margie were star performers with the Keystone Modern Carnival, now playing on a lot at Lakewood avenue and McDonough Boulevard.

They were boon companions. Margie, a few years older than Jimmy, was teaching Jimmy all the tricks she knew. She was teaching him to ride the bicycle, just like she did, and being a modern girl, Margie knew how to roll a cigaret, and she was imparting that knowledge to Jimmy also.

Although Jimmy could not be consoled even when pretty Miss Joyce Adair, of 208 Tudor street put her arms around him, his old friend, Margie, was not faring so badly, at least that's what Miss Adair told him.

"Why, Margie's in a cage out at the Grant Park zoo," Miss Adair said. "She's out there with a lot of other chimpanzees, monkeys and baboons and——"

"Disgraceful," Jimmy said. "She's with those common animals. All they know how to do is chase peanuts. Why, we are performers—artists—stars—"

Jimmy's grief was caused when a bailiff from the civil court of Fulton county, armed with a bail trover, brought by J. D. Ward, of Baton Rouge, La., caused Margie to be taken into custody.

Ward claimed he was the owner of Margie and eight monkeys which had been turned over to Floyd Warner. Margie and two of the monkeys were ordered confined in the Grant Park zoo pending a hearing before Judge Luther Z. Rosser over the ownership of the questioned animals.

Quick Accord Is Reached on Profit Limits

Renegotiation of Contracts Believed Authorized in Amendment.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP) A House-Senate Conference Committee reached unexpectedly swift agreement today on a profit limitations amendment to the pending $19,200,000,000 war bill — an amendment reported to authorize government agencies to renegotiate contracts to prevent excessive profits.

The committee did not make details of the agreement public immediately, but members said it would be filed late tomorrow with the house for consideration Monday. It must be approved by both houses before becoming law.

An informed source said that the terms of the compromise followed substantially the form voted by the senate in passing the bill and recommended by several war agencies.

The War Department, Navy Department, Maritime Commission and War Production Board would be directed to provide in all contracts that they could be renegotiated and terms revised if they resulted in excessive profits. It was reported that determination of what constituted excessive profit would be left to discretion of the heads of the agencies. Contracts already made would be subject to voluntary renegotiation.

Members of the Conference Committee reported that they had been unable to agree on a proposed increase of $4,080,000 to provide air traffic control facilities in New York and Washington, asked by Senator McCarran, Democrat, Nevada.

The proposal will be resubmitted to the house for a separate vote, members said.

Abandoned Rails May Aid Bell Plant

Rails salvaged from abandoned Atlanta street car lines may be used at the Bell bomber plant, it developed yesterday in conferences between WPB officials and Garland F. Steele, superintendent of streets in the city construction department.

Steele said that 3,000 feet, weighing about 180 tons already have been taken from Cooper street and are piled at Cooper street and Hendrix avenue awaiting removal by federal authorities.

WPA is removing the rails and repaving the street. The government will get the rails for war use. Those now being taken from the streets weigh about 120 pounds a foot.

JOB GUARANTEES URGED.

Guarantee of jobs for volunteers when the war ends such as has been granted conscripts is under consideration in the Ulster senate as the result of an appeal presented at Belfast, Northern Ireland, by Major Dobbs. It was pointed out that without work, the veteran volunteers would require financial assistance.

General MacArthur's Authority Is Now Clarified 'Satisfactorily'

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP) Secretary Stimson said today the Army would be ready for the offensive soon, no matter what difficulties might be encountered. At the same time he emphasized that General Douglas MacArthur had "over-all strategic command" in the southwest Pacific.

(Later in the day, news dispatches from Australia said MacArthur had received a directive from Washington clarifying his powers. Newsmen at U. S. Army headquarters in Australia were informed the directive was completely satisfactory.)

Without minimizing the obstacles and problems involved in preparing for offensive warfare of world-wide scope, the secretary of war spoke both confidently and optimistically to newspapermen at a press conference

Beginning to Move.

"So far as the Army is concerned," he said, "we are getting pretty near the stage of being ready for an offensive, however difficult it may be. . . .

"Things are beginning to move and to move in the right direction.

"I am now more than ever convinced that we are going to get on the offensive and to do so at the earliest practicable moment."

Stressing the difficulties, however, he went on to say that:

"Before we can lead this nation into a long-sustained offensive we must be sure as possible that certain key points in our armor are as safe as possible.

"And when it is a world war with powerful enemies attacking us all around the globe, our key points of defense run far out into distant quarters of the world where some friendly nation is holding a post that is vital to us.

Task Not Finished.

"That is what we have been trying to do during these difficult months and the task is not yet finished."

It was equally important, he said, to be certain that once the offensive had begun, that there would be no interruption to war production, to delay or hamper the attack.

The cabinet member expressed surprise that any question as to General MacArthur's authority had been raised. Following statements attributed to men at the MacArthur headquarters in Australia that his power had not been defined there was a flurry of sometimes indignant discussion. This, Mr. Stimson said, was a "tempest in a teapot."

Warm Co-operation.

"From the very beginning, when the President authorized General MacArthur's transfer from the Philippines to Australia, there had never been a moment's question that he would have the over-all strategic command in that area," he said.

"The Australians and the Dutch have been warmly co-operative from the beginning, but there have been details to work out."

Australian and Dutch agreement, he continued, was embodied in a formal directive which was signed April 3. Whether New Zealand was included in the area of MacArthur's command was, however, a "military secret," Stimson added.

C. B. Gramling Heads Georgia Labor Group

Atlanta Selected for '43 Convention at Augusta Session.

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 17.—(AP) In closing convention session, Georgia's Federation of Labor sanctioned resolutions opposing both compulsory savings and sales tax legislation.

Instead of a much-discussed plan of compulsory savings based on giving overtime pay in defense bonds, the Federation resolution proposed a voluntary program of bond purchases, asserting this would "reflect the true American spirit."

The convention also opposed any scuttling of federal aid to "underprivileged and landless people," charging those who sought this were like those who wanted to scuttle the gains of labor under the New Deal.

Elections for the ensuing year seated as president Charles B. Gramling, chief engineer of Atlanta waterworks, and Professor William Van Houten, teacher at Georgia Tech Foundry School, as secretary-treasurer.

Floyd Puckett, of the Atlanta Carpenters' Union, was elected vice president, and Past President Dewey L. Johnson, of Atlanta, was elected delegate to the American Federation of Labor.

Atlanta was chosen convention city for 1943.

Johnson did not seek re-election, stating his race for mayor of Atlanta would obviate it, and Miss Allie Mann, Atlanta school teacher, said her school duties precluded her candidacy for secretary again.

Special resolutions of praise were passed for Harry B. Garnett, of Columbus, a vice president who resigned to enter the Navy.

James Barnett, of the Treasury Department, former director of the A. F. of L.'s publicity, urged that attempts to "legislate patriotism" be ended.

"It is as much sense," he said, "to pass a law requiring the American Federation to be patriotic as it is to pass a law requiring a mother to love her child. Both spring from the heart." The convention was urged to support requests for increases in the pay of post office employes.

District vice presidents elected were J. T. Price, Macon district; W. B. Cooney, of Savannah, and Howard Anthony, of Columbus.

Bob Donohue, southern representative of textile unions, said a campaign would be projected to organize all textile workers in Georgia under the A. F. of L. banner.

Mrs. Maggie Sewell, Atlanta member of the Garment Workers' Union, sponsored an adopted resolution calling on all union men to buy only clothing bearing union-made labels.

Another sanctioned resolution asked state federation aid in organizing laundry workers in Georgia, and still another calls upon employers to display service flags for workers in armed forces.

The convention urged the government to pay civilian defense workers for injuries or illness caused by bombings.

It also recorded support of Georgia teachers' appeal for pay raises.

Sugar Price Raise Believed A Possibility

Refiners Urged To Limit Sales to 'Immediate Shipments.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP) The possibility of an increase in sugar prices was indicated today in government-sponsored efforts to finance movement of cane and beet sugar into shortage areas.

Pending development of the financing program, the Office of Price Administration telegraphed all refiners and primary distributors of sugar requesting that they limit sales to "immediate shipments," which will be moved within three days of receipt of purchase orders.

Harold B. Rowe, OPA food rationing chief, said representatives of the Defense Supplies Corporation, the Department of Agriculture, and WPB participated in conferences here yesterday and today to discuss a program designed to facilitate payment of freight charges involved in moving sugar to places outside normal selling areas. Details of the plan were not immediately announced.

The Defense Supplies Corporation is financing sugar shipments to northeastern states from outlying districts to meet shortages resulting from disruption of shipping. The new program is expected to enable such shipments to be made without government expense, yet with a minimum of financial hardship to the consumer.

Lesson Sermon Topic Announced

"Doctrine of Atonement" is the subject of the lesson-sermon to be read tomorrow in Christian Science churches of Atlanta. Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "We also joy in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom we have now received the atonement."

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health With Key To Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Jesus aided in reconciling men to God by giving man a truer sense of love, the divine principle of Jesus' teachings, and this truer sense of love redeems man from the law of matter, sin, and death by the law of spirit—the law of divine love."

Plane Passengers Must Pull Shades at Airports

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP) Air line passengers, it was disclosed today, now are directed to pull down their window shades when their plane takes off or lands at airports over the country.

The idea is to prevent scrutiny of war industries, harbor defenses and the like in the vicinity of airports, it was explained.

Generally the shades must be drawn five minutes before landing, and five minutes after taking off, but the time varies according to the surroundings of the various airports.

The regulations were adopted by the Air Line Transport Association, it was said, and the understanding was that the army had suggested them.

TRANSFERRED HERE—Captain Montee Tilly, recently was transferred from Toronto, Canada, to the field department of the Salvation Army offices here.

Slavery Seen If War Is Lost, Youths Hear

Farm Credit Administration Leader Speaks at Athens.

ATHENS, Ga., April 17.—(AP)—Henry S. Johnson, of Columbia, S. C., director of information for the Farm Credit Administration, declared tonight that during the last three years more people have been carried away into slavery than in any similar period in history.

"Do you realize that if the present war is lost you here tonight stand a chance of being carried in slavery to a foreign land or being a slave here in the land of your forefathers?" he asked in a speech prepared for delivery to the Georgia Rural Youth Council.

"Do you know that through a knowledge of scientific nutrition the conquerors deliberately withhold vital foods and thus intentionally destroy the bodies and minds of whole races?"

Speaking on "the challenge to farm youth in this crisis," Johnson asserted that "this is not an ordinary industrial or economic crisis. It is nothing more or less than a world conflict in which the central issue is that of the freedom and integrity of the individual human soul."

The FCA official said rural youths in Georgia are playing a major part in the war and cannot afford to occupy a detached position. He reminded them that they must make some adjustment of their lives in relation to present conditions.

"Have you stopped to think that American forces are having to retreat because the American people failed to prepare for war?" he asked.

The council meeting, sponsored by the Georgia Older Rural Youth Council at the University of Georgia and the Agricultural Extension Service, is the second intercollegiate conference on rural youth. With delegates from Georgia colleges and rural communities attending, it will last for three days.

Labor Denies Responsibility For E. E. Cox

Didn't Send Him to Congress, State Federation Asserts.

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 17.—(AP) The Georgia Federation of Labor asserted today that unions of this state "are in no way responsible for the fact" that Representative E. E. Cox, Democrat, Georgia, "is a member of the United States congress."

The assertion was contained in a resolution adopted in the federation's closing convention session. The resolution added that Representative Howard Smith, Democrat, Virginia, "seems to have become the dupe of Congressman Cox in the fight against labor."

Cox, said the federation, represents a "disfranchised" district in which 6,000 persons cast ballots in congressional elections.

"There are good people in Cox's (second) district, but they are grossly misled by the Cox school of thought, and many do not vote because of the poll tax," the labor expression added.

Worker Back on Job After Sabotage Charge

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 17.—(AP)—Joseph Frank Weiss, 31, who was arrested last month on an FBI charge of sabotage, has returned to his former job as an inspector at the Vultee Aircraft plant here, Vultee officials said today.

Weiss was bound over under $1,000 bond to a federal grand jury June 1 and released on his own recognizance by a United States commissioner in Richmond, Va., several days ago.

The FBI warrant charged Weiss with inserting faulty rivets into the wings of a United States Marine Corps airplane at Quantico, Virginia.

'Getting Ready for Emergency' Is Discussed by Dr. Knight

Pastor Stresses Importance of Building Spiritual Reserves.

(Recognizing the desire on the part of the public generally for closer co-operation with religion, The Constitution is presenting each Saturday on the church page a series of short sermons, written by Atlanta ministers. This, the second in the series, entitled "Getting Ready for the Emergency," was written by Dr. Ryland Knight, pastor of the Second-Ponce de Leon Baptist church.)

By DR. RYLAND KNIGHT.

The criticism is made than when the war broke this country was not ready for the emergency. That is often true in our spiritual life. Temptation, sorrow, disaster, responsibility come upon us suddenly, and we are unprepared. How important that we build our spiritual reserves against that day!

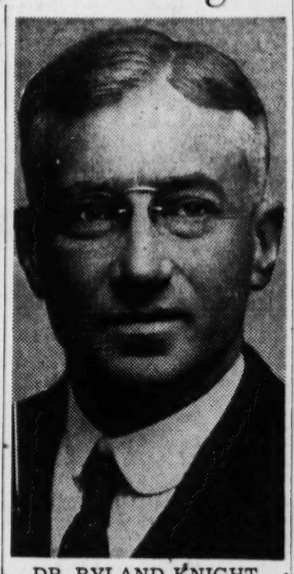

God has provided the church to meet this need. As we worship together God's strength comes into our lives. Our faith is renewed. Our courage is revived. Our sense of God's eternal nearness is deepened. Our spiritual reserves are replenished. How we need today all the strength of soul which such services afford us!

Mr. Arthur Lucas has written a statement which is being shown on the movie screen throughout Georgia. I am quoting some of its sentences. I wish there were space to quote the statement in full:

"For 2,000 years the Christian faith has been a light burning in the darkness of a troubled world, a guide and a beacon to all men everywhere. It has survived because, through all the ages, the church has been its shelter and its shield. To the church the people have turned for strength when they were sorely pressed, and for guidance when the way was dark.

"We, who walk a dark and dangerous road today, must turn to the church for strength.

"The doors of the church are open. The light of the faith still burns. The altars await a nation that bows its head to God—and in that act of humbleness finds strength to hold its head up proudly against whatever foe may come."

DR. RYLAND KNIGHT.

Rehearsal Fetes Given To Honor Bridal Couples

Concluding the elaborate series of parties, which has complimented two of the loveliest of the season's brides-elect, were the buffet suppers given last evening after their wedding rehearsals.

Miss Sarah Sims and Ensign Elwyn V. Hopkins, who will be married today, were feted by Dr. and Mrs. Earl Floyd at their residence on Cheshire Bridge road. Mrs. T. N. Hutchinson, Mrs. Eustace Allen and Mrs. Marshall Sims assisted in entertaining.

A handsome silver epergne filled with delicate pink and blue blossoms centered the buffet table, which was covered with a lace cloth. Silver candelabra holding lighted ivory tapers completed the table appointments.

Among out-of-town guests present were Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Stephenson, of Birmingham, Ala.; Dr. and Mrs. A. S. Hopkins and Mrs. Islah Mae Roark, all of Covington, and Miss Ethelyn Allen, of Savannah.

Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Hemminger entertained for Miss Doris Watson and William R. Joiner Jr., whose marriage will be an interesting event of today. Mrs. T. F. Hemminger and Mrs. D. W. Watson assisted in entertaining at the party, which took place at the hosts' residence on Candler road.

A graceful arrangement of shell pink tulips and blue delphinium arranged in a crystal container formed the centerpiece for the table, which was overlaid with a hand-crocheted ivory cloth. Crystal candelabra, which bore lighted white tapers flanked the centerpiece.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Emory S. Lanier Jr., announce the birth of a son on April 7 at Emory hospital, whom they have named Emory Sidney III. Mrs. Lanier is the former Miss Nell Bannister, and the baby is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Emory S. Lanier Sr.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Frederick announce the birth of a daughter, Carolyn, on March 9.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy L. Parker announce the birth of a son, Raymond Claude, on April 12 at Piedmont hospital. Mrs. Parker is the former Miss Gladys Butler. The baby is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Parker, of Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mr. and Mrs. William Theron Leslie announce the birth of a son, Bryan Guard, on April 14, at the Crawford W. Long hospital. Mrs. Leslie is the former Miss Nina Mae Guard.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shimp Jr. announce the birth of a son April 13 at Piedmont hospital, who has been named Charles III.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Millar Everett announce the birth of a daughter, Jane Kleckley, on April 9 at Riverside Sanitarium, Montezuma, Ga. The baby's mother was formerly Miss Caroline English, of Oglethorpe. Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Everett, of Atlanta, are her paternal grandparents.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Billups K. Buder announce the birth of a daughter, Anita Diann, on March 27, at Georgia Baptist hospital. Lieutenant Buder is now stationed in Boston where Mrs. Buder and their children will join him for residence at an early date.

Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Turner announce the birth of a son at St. Joseph's infirmary on April 9, who has been named David J. Jr. Mrs. Turner is the former Miss Katherine Howard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Howard Jr., of Gordon road. The baby's paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Turner, of Lakewood Heights.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. McCormack announce the birth of a daughter on April 16 at Piedmont hospital whom they have named Sharon Drews.

D. A. R. Committee To Meet Monday.

The junior membership committee of the Joseph Habersham D. A. R. will meet at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Weatherwax, 344 Manor Ridge drive, N. W., on Monday at 3:30 o'clock. Assisting the hostess will be Mrs. Vernon Yost, her sister. The chairman, Mrs. George Bland Jr., will preside.

Or particular interest is the announcement of the pages chosen from the junior membership to attend the national convention, who are Mrs. George Bland Jr., Mrs. James I. White and Mrs. Grady Poole. The day is May 4, and the place is the Stevens hotel, Chicago.

Mrs. Joseph Read, program chairman, will present Mrs. R. P. Sweeney, first vice regent, who will read a paper on the life of Thomas Jefferson.

Miss Eden Newton Honored at Tea.

One of the loveliest parties given for Miss Eden Newton, whose marriage to Lieutenant Richard Guerin takes place this month, was the tea which took place yesterday at the home of Mrs. Roy B. Sewell on Habersham road.

The hostesses for the party were Mesdames Roy Sewell, Norman Dennis, W. H. Duckworth, Julius Harris, Guy Hewell, Horace Hixon, Paul Patton, Jess Walton and N. H. Owen. They were assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Louie D. Newton and Miss Catherine Newton.

The table was covered with a Venise cloth. A green and white color scheme was carried out in the decorations. Several hundred guests called during the afternoon.

MRS. STANLEY C. EISENBERG.

Mrs. Eisenberg is the former Miss Marion Rosenberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Rosenberg.

Final Prenuptial Parties Fete Miss Harrison, Mr. Dinkins

Preceding their wedding rehearsal last evening, Miss Evelyn Harrison and Pat C. Dinkins Jr. were complimented at two social affairs, the first having been the cocktail party given by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hill Jr.

The party, which took place at the Walter Hill Sr. home on Argonne drive, was attended by the bridal couple's wedding attendants and a few close friends. Mrs. Hill and Mrs. V. C. Murrah assisted in entertaining. The interior of the home was artistically decorated with arrangements of vari-colored spring blossoms.

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Ryman entertained for Miss Harrison and Mr. Dinkins at a buffet supper at their Habersham road residence. Mrs. Julian M. Harrison and Mrs. Frank Carter assisted in entertaining the guests who included the Harrison-Dinkins bridal party and out-of-town guests for the wedding, which takes place at noon today at the Second-Ponce de Leon Baptist church.

Posed on the satin-covered buffet table was an exquisite miniature bridal scene fashioned of yellow and white spring flowers and tiny candles. An organ loft was represented by glass brick, while yellow tapers formed the pipes. The tiny altar, which was made of yellow tulips, spirea, and yellow pansies, was placed against a background of yellow calla lilies. Outlining the aisle were sprays of Lady Bankshire roses. Tiny bridesmaids wearing green tulle skirts adorned with valley lilies had heads made of clusters of yellow pansies, while the flower girl wore white organdy and lace. Valley lilies formed the head of the bride, who wore white net and lace.

Screen Actors' Guild Protests Against Lack Of Air Raid Shelters

By Louella O. Parsons.

HOLLYWOOD, April 17.—Criticizing haphazard measures so far taken by studios to protect their 30,000 workers against expected bombing raids, the Screen Actors' Guild is demanding that all lots erect adequate and safe bomb shelters. Workers complain that improvised shelters currently in use would provide little or no protection and in some instances would be actually more dangerous than remaining in the open.

Fred Astaire thinks 18-year-old Joan Leslie is the best dancing prospect in Hollywood and wants her for a partner in his next film.

The most flaming red hair in town is rooted to Arleen Whelan's head. Black-and-white has never revealed this girl's true beauty but some day a shrewd producer may treat her to a technicolor splash. Then watch out for a startling transformation and perhaps an important addition to the glamor lists.

Warner publicists are tearing their hair over those stories about a sisterly feud between Olivia de Havilland and Joan Fontaine, both working on that lot. Actually, Olivia and Joan haven't been any too palsy-walsy, but there never have been any scratching or hair-pulling battles—at least not in public. A forthcoming issue of a picture magazine will show the girls together in a series of chummy family shots.

Abbott and Costello have bought new outfits for Father Flanagan's Boystown baseball team. Costello, incidentally, almost lost part of a finger by amputation last week. An infection set in after he had given himself a manicure.

A few days ago Sam Coslow, the director, was riding in a cab and struck up conservation with the driver. The cabbie said he was once a film producer in Europe, that he was down on his luck and that several of his former employes, now big shots in Hollywood, had refused to talk to him on the phone. Coslow was amazed and checked the story. This week the cab driver will go to work for Coslow as an assistant director. His name, Fritz Bruhn, refugee producer of "Two Hearts in Waltz Time" and other great screen and stage hits!

Victor Mature has reason to think more kindly of matrimony again. He suffered a badly lacerated hand while performing a midnight operation on a can of sardines. . . . Don Ameche has just turned down a bid to run for the California state assembly. "I'd rather stick to inventing things in the movies," said Don.

Geoffrey O'Hara, who wrote "K-K-K-K--Katy" for the last war, has written "J-J-J-J-Joey," lyrical story of a tank pilot, with virtually the same tune.

If any of Ginger Rogers' romances really become serious before August 1 and wind up at the altar, it's going to cost the star of "The Major and the Minor" exactly $5,000. Ginger and Joan Crawford got to talking about remarriage at a dinner party some 20 months ago. The discussion wound up with the girls betting $5,000 that the other would be married within two years. The wager has less than four months to run.

Strange place, this Hollywood! Virginia Gilmore tore a number of bulbs out of her garden and planted some other flowers. None of the posies grew but the discarded bulbs, tossed into a can of ashes, have been thriving beautifully.

Veronica Lake, her hair done up in pigtails, was refused a drink at Barney's Beanery the other night. They didn't recognize her and said she looked too young. Her husband fell in with the situation, finally "admitted" the house was right and ordered an orange juice for her.

Warner Brothers are partial to radio announcers as leading man material. Three years ago they yanked Ronald Reagan from a midwestern microphone and last week signed handsome, six-feet-four Bill Kennedy, who used to vocalize over a Detroit station. . . . Ann Todd, the 9-year-old girl who was mighty good in "Remember the Day," has just had her option lifted by 20th Century-Fox. At her mother's request, the Los Angeles court ruled that her pay increase be doled out in war bonds.

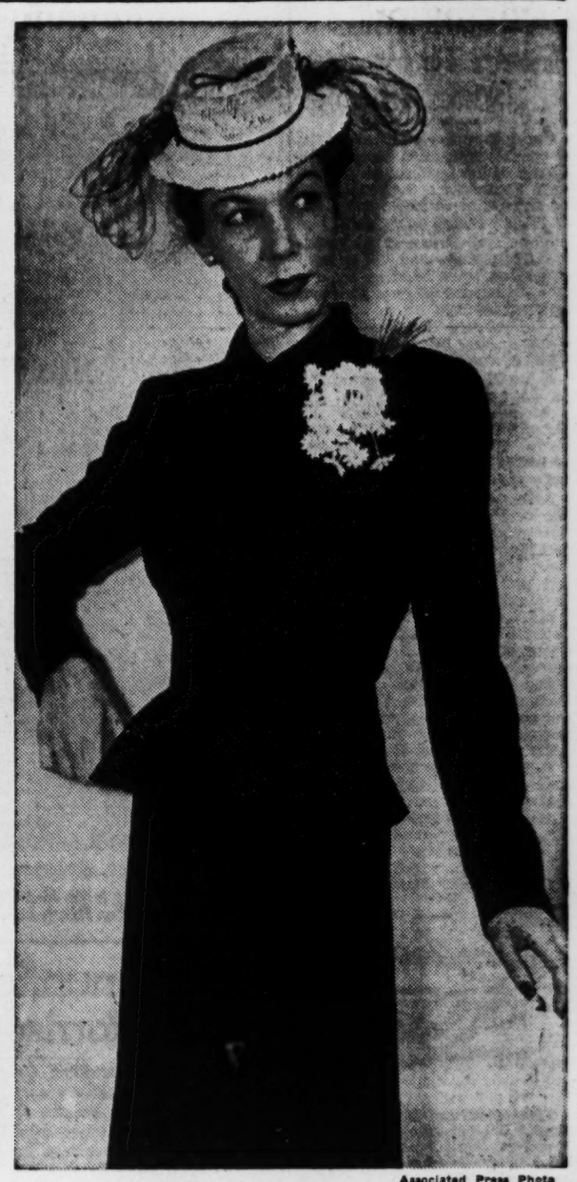

A slight dramatic license has been taken in casting John Shepperd as Edgar Allan Poe—six inches, in fact. Poe was five-feet-eight. Shepperd is six-two.

Mary Martin is campaigning to get some sexy, slinky roles at Paramount. To further her campaign she's had some photographic layouts shot in sleek evening clothes, which she put in the hands of studio bosses. Her next is "Happy-Go-Lucky," in which she plays Mary Martin.

Nice for spring is this costume—of black crepe, the pleated peplum flaring like a fishtail above a slim, straight skirt. A forward-tilted hat of pleated white ribbon wheels is held by tiny ribbon bows.

The Problem of Insulin for the Poor

By Dr. William Brady.

Here is what one diabetic thinks about it:

Dear Dr. Brady:

I am a married man 32 years old and have had diabetes since I was 14 years old. When I first found out I had it, regulation of diet and insulin came before everything else. Fortunately I had attained 8th grade education before that time.

I believe there are few kinds or types of labor I haven't done or tried, and a few years ago after much begging and running around I got an order for a few bottles of insulin from the local relief office.

It is too bad we don't get some one in political office with diabetes.

We have Christmas Seals for tuberculosis and the March of Dimes for victims of infantile paralysis, but no agency to help diabetes sufferers who cannot afford to buy insulin.

There must be hundreds of diabetics right here in this community who are, like myself, unable to buy the insulin they need.

It seems every job I get I'm in debt for insulin when I start, and then, of course, it is a problem to buy more and pay for what I have already used and still keep a home together.

(One of thousands of insulin users.)

This is one of many letters of similar import I have received from diabetics who need insulin but cannot afford it.

Without further discussion I submit it, first, to the public, and second, to the rank and file of the American Medical Association whose unrestrained self-constituted spokesman scathingly denounced me, in the editorial columns of what purports to be the official organ of the association, because I called to public attention the equivocal attitude of the American Medical Association toward the patenting of insulin in the face of the unequivocal declaration of the Association's own Code of Medical Ethics that "It is unprofessional to receive remunerations from patents for surgical instruments or medicines."

For the information of the casual reader let me say that I am a member or fellow of the American Medical Association.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Vite in Novel.

You may be interested in knowing that your new word vite appears on page 418 of the new novel by Thornwell Jacobs, "Drums of Doomsday," published by Dutton. (M. E. S.)

Answer—Thank you. Too bad it wasn't a murder story—the only fiction I can read.

Gasoline.

Work in dry cleaners. The air sometimes very green, with fumes of ordinary gasoline. What effect has this on health? Would use of ether for dry cleaning be less harmful than gasoline? (K. S. H.)

Answer—Frequent or constant inhalation of gasoline vapor in air causes "naphtha jag"—irrational behavior, silly giggling, hysteria, etc. There is little apparent serious damage to health. Ether is not less harmful. Best protection is good ventilation.

Six and Eight.

I am deeply grateful for all the invaluable help I have obtained from your "little lessons" No. 6 and No. 8. These have enabled me to recover excellent health in the past year. (M. J. E.)

Answer—No. 6 is "The Last Brady Symphony"—keep fit exercises. No. 8 is "Feeders Digest," about foods. For No. 6 send ten cents, for No. 8 25 cents and stamped envelope bearing your address.

MY DAY: Visit to Red Cross In New York City

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Thursday.—Before leaving New York City yesterday morning for a dinner given in Boston for the benefit of the International Student Service, I went to the headquarters of the New York City Red Cross. General Davis took me all over the building and I was much impressed by the foresight they have shown in ordering their supplies early and being prepared for any eventuality.

I took a few books under my arm as a token to give to the victory book campaign. I looked with envy at the canteen utensils, which must make working a joy. Compared with what we used in the last war, they seemed to me most efficient and convenient. The motor corps was kind enough to offer to drive me out to LaGuardia Field, but realizing that they have no assurance of tires in the future, and knowing they are much more needed for service transportation, I took a taxi. When taxicab tires wear out, I imagine we shall all take to buses. In the meantime, I hope it is legitimate to use taxies.

In Boston, Mrs. Henry Leach, Mrs. Eliot Pratt, Mr. Joseph Lash and I each had a quiet lunch and then each went our way to do some kind of work. I had two press conferences on the subject of international student service. The Boston committee is doing a wonderful piece of work and I hope it will be the nucleus of work all over New England.

In midafternoon I went to call on Professor and Mrs. Whitehead in Cambridge. They are two of the most charming older people I have ever met, but they are only elderly in looks. In spirit and mind both of them approach the future and the problems of today with a viewpoint strangely resembling the courage and vision of youth tempered by the experience of age. I enjoyed every minute with them.

We attended three different parties given before the dinner and, finally, Governor and Mrs. Saltonstall drove me to the Vendome hotel about a quarter past 7. I was delighted to see Dr. and Mrs. Endicott Peabody, Mr. and Mrs. William Phillips and Mr. and Mrs. John Saltonstall at our last small reception. I hope that everyone felt that the dinner was an interesting occasion.

My cousin, Mrs. Alexander Grant, was there and I recognized familiar faces in many parts of the room. Dr. Max Lerner and Dr. Perry both gave brilliant speeches. Dr. William Neilson presided and introduced each speaker aptly in his kindly and inimitable way. Miss Irene Murray, of Mt. Holyoke, came to tell us from the students' point of view what the Campobello summer institute had meant to her last summer, and captivated her audience. Mr. James Lanigan spoke for the graduate student. The questions at the end came fast and furious and indicated so much interest that it was all I could do to get my party together and make the midnight train back to New York City. Here we are now back in Washington.

Today's Charm Tip

You're a more charming parent in your child's eyes and a more respected one when you refuse to become slave to his every request and whim.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edythe Thomas Wallace.

Father: "The little strands of this rope are not very strong but, twisted together, they make a strong rope. That's the way with your defense stamps. Every stamp helps make the big sum which is needed."

Son: "But I'd rather spend my dime than buy a defense stamp."

Father: "Oh, let him spend it Mother. The few stamps he can buy won't make any difference, one way or another. He can see that."

For a child's own sake, he should be helped to feel he has a part in his country's war effort.

Man Seldom Measures Up To Girl's Memory of Him

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie:

I did not love my husband when I married five years ago, and have never been happy. I married him because my family thought he would be a good catch and would make me a good husband. He does not love me either, for he has proved it on a number of occasions. I know he has been unfaithful to me. I have tried my best to love him, but I cannot. Before I married, the man I loved went to South America on business. He was to be there for several years, and his future was a bit uncertain in that he could not make any plans for marriage. His work was going to carry him into the wilds of the jungles, and there just was not a place for a wife. He told me all this, but asked me to wait for him. While he was gone, my family influenced me to marry my husband, which I have regretted ever since. Six months ago this other man came back from South America and asked me to leave my husband if I did not love him, and marry him. I have tried to work this out in my mind, but I need your help. I am not making my husband happy, and there is no happiness in store for me unless I leave him. What would you do?

GIRL-HE-LEFT-BEHIND.

I think I would separate for awhile and see what the reactions would be. I would not suggest a divorce right away, for there is not any reason for jumping from the frying pan into the fire, and that is exactly what you would do. The man who has been away for so long has re-entered your life and you feel toward him as you did five years ago. Five years makes a lot of difference, especially if this man has been so far away from you. His life has been different from what it was when he was here, and he may have changed. He may still love you, but do you love him in the same way? Perhaps, you think you do, because you are so unhappy now.

I would suggest a three or four month test period. If you can go to your family or out of town, or just live to yourself to work this thing out, I think it would be a good idea. Of course, I see no reason to go through life being miserable and unhappy with a man whom you do not love and who is unfaithful to you, but on the other hand, I would not advise getting a divorce right away and rushing into marriage with this other man, regardless of the way you may have felt toward him years ago. If this husband you have has been unfaithful to you, you have a good reason to leave him, inasmuch as you do not love him, and there would be no reason for you to overlook his actions.

Over-Dressing Can Spoil Your Interview

By Ida Jean Kain.

When the boss arrives at the office wearing an unusually loud shirt and a tie only the color blind could call conservative, you can take it he has a tough day ahead and is trying to give himself a lift.

That is all right for the boss. But unless you are in an executive position yourself, your bright red nail polish is out of place. Who says so? A woman! She is Helen Trimpe, Manhattanite who makes a business of furthering other women's careers and who has made a study of thousands of employer-employe associations to find out what makes for success.

Miss Trimpe vetoes a number of feminine foibles for the business woman who wants to go places—extreme high heels, the uniform black dress affected by so many New Yorkers, and overweight.

Being opposed to very high heels does not mean she favors flat ones. "There should be a happy medium in heels," Miss Trimpe believes. "They should be neither too high nor too low—just comfortable and in good taste."

Her objections to black will make you think twice before adopting it as your basic color. "It is dull, negative, and unbecoming to most women. It is not a gentle color. I think women in business should be more gentle. Black is all right now and then, but not for steady wear."

By the way, this career director has an interesting tip on clothes for the job applicant: "The casual dress a woman is wearing when she reads the advertisement is much more likely to be suitable for answering it than the one in which she dolls up. Over-dressing is one of the most common mistakes made by job applicants."

Does your weight make any impression on the prospective employer? Miss Trimpe assures me that it does. "If a woman is fat, he assumes that she is indifferent to her appearance and apt to be lazy and careless about her work. But there are comparatively few overweight women in business. They do not last. Now and then one comes to consult me about her career and the first thing I ask is 'Why are you fat.' As soon as she begins to take her weight down, she spruces up in her appearance. She sits straighter and takes more pride in herself. But, as a rule, business women run to thinness, sometimes to nerves."

Thinness and nerves go together—even the government recognizes that, and the thin, neurotic girls are being warned not to flock to Washington, D. C., for jobs. The pace is too fast for them. They can't take it.

The more overworked a business girl is, Miss Trimpe has found, the greater her need for calisthenics, preferably the passive kind, as massage. But as a day-in, day-out antidote to nerve strain she recommends stretching and rolling exercises performed on a pallet on the floor. The reason she thinks they are good is, they have worked out for her.

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Chirologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—Before 8:31 a. m. is the better part of the day, when you will deal with more diplomacy where others are concerned. Therefore, try to attend to matters requiring immediate attention at this time.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—If you are wanting to get some speed out of your system—that is, attending to affairs that require pluck, energy and aggressiveness, attend to it before 6:44 p. m.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—Your activity, vitality and forcefulness may be expressed to your advantage, previous to 3:51 p. m. This period is favorable for land and property interests. The remainder of the day suggests caution around water and in the use of liquids.

June 21st and July 22d (CANCER)—Previous to 10:15 a. m. you will not only be easily annoyed, but will find that others disturb you, and therefore a critical attitude surrounds affairs. New beginnings at this time may encounter disruptive tendencies.

July 23d and August 22d (LEO)—This should be a more peaceful, harmonious and agreeable day, at this time you can put forth much activity to obtain comfort, and for dealings in artistic and pleasurable lines.

August 23d and September 22d (VIRGO)—Keep in mind today that you must keep your poise, for the indications are that you will be balked at every turn. Affairs do not go right under influences predominating today, and probably will not go at all. Some hard lesson learned can be most helpful in the future.

September 23d and October 22d (LIBRA)—The combined influences for the day tend toward quick flare-ups, peevishness and irritation. There will be a danger of over-estimating finances and overdoing gaiety.

October 23d and November 21st (SCORPIO)—Before 8:43 a. m. many of your ideas will be worth putting to the test of experience, for you will be filled with considerable intuition as to what is the right thing to do.

November 22d and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—The day favors matters pertaining to the ground, such as real estate, mining, moving. After 6:01 p. m. favors social affairs and sports.

December 22d and January 19th (CAPRICORN)—The hours previous to 11:30 a. m. are the best of the day. An excellent period for dealings with professional people, business affairs, monetary interests. While the remainder of the day may not be considered favorable for the beginning of new affairs, old ideas may be consummated if poise is maintained.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—The day favors dealings with relatives, agents, teachers and travel, provided you use moderation. A good day to put new plans and ideas into operation.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—Previous to 3:40 p. m. your energy may be turned into useful channels with the expectations that your activities will be well received. At this time, deal with people of a martial temperament.

At the City Hall

Atlantans—at least some of them—are taking no chances about not being properly registered in the May 27 special mayoralty election. Joe L. Richardson, city clerk and registrar, Thursday mailed out cards to about 7,000 registrants asking that they return the cards to confirm their registration as provided by council ordinances. They began to come back yesterday. Some even dispensed with sending the card in and telephones were kept crowded for a large part of the day.

Lieutenant Marvin L. Thomas, of the city traffic bureau, yesterday was named by General E. G. Peyton, commander of civilian defense for Atlanta, as assistant to Councilman Raleigh Drennon, industrial plant supervisor for defense. Thomas will advise with owners and operators of plants concerning the best methods of protection if the war comes to Atlanta.

Eight of the 32 city departments have surrendered about 70 employes to various armed services of the government, according to a tabulation begun yesterday by Mayor Lyle.

Further conferences between city and state officials over inspection policies regarding milk inspections were postponed yesterday. Mayor Lyle had planned to confer with Dr. T. F. Abercrombie, state health commissioner, in company with Councilman James E. Jackson, chairman of council's health and sanitation committee, but principals could not attend.

Efforts to have the 179th (Atlanta's own) Field Artillery parade in Atlanta April 26, Memorial Day, failed yesterday when Mayor Lyle was informed by Washington Army commanders that his request is impossible at this time. The mayor had urged that the unit be brought from Mississippi to participate in the observance.

Mayor Lyle yesterday said he will write a personal letter of appreciation to all employes of the city who have entered the service. He began his writing by addressing communications to about 50 already listed at his office and asked department heads to furnish names and addresses of all others. More than 100 are estimated to have gone to various services since the war began.

Shares Take Downward Path

NEW YORK, April 17.—(AP)—The stock market today reaffirmed its pessimistic appraisal of the French situation and some elements of the domestic economic picture by another downward step to the lowest average levels since April 28, 1933.

Principal pressure was on industrials, although rails gave way generally in the late proceedings. Selling attained no great volume, but it seemed that offerings had to be on steadily declining scale of prices to attract bids.

At the close losses in the key departments ranged from fractions to 2 or more points. Numerous stocks established new bottoms for a long stretch of years.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite fell .5 of a point to 32.8. Its last rise was on April 6. Transactions totaled 418,395 shares against 262,720 yesterday.

Tension over Pierre Laval's return to power in the Vichy government was increased by the news from France that Ambassador Leahy had been recalled to Washington "for consultation."

Bonds and commodities also traveled a downward route.

Curb prices tilted down, with substantial losses in American Cyanamid, Colts Patent Fire Arms, Great Atlantic non-voting and Sherwin Williams.

Cotton

Prices Decline 30 to 50 Cents

NEW YORK, April 17.—(AP)—Cotton futures closed 30 to 50 cents a bale lower today as traders liquidated contracts because of nervousness over the French political situation's effect on world affairs.

Other factors involved in the downturn were commission house selling and hedging against 1941 loan repossessions.

General Electric Lists Record Gains

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., April 17.—(AP)—General Electric's production for World War II already exceeds that of the entire first war and "every practicable means is being employed to increase production still further," President Charles E. Wilson reported yesterday.

"This will not be difficult if every employe can be made to see his personal stake in the war," Wilson said in a statement.

The president, reporting the largest number of employes in the company's history, asserted a majority work more than 40 hours a week, some 60 hours, with an average for the company's largest plant 47.7 hours per worker.

Five new plants are being added to already vastly expanded facilities, Wilson said, with men and women now in training to staff them as so they are ready for production. He noted a minimum of temporary unemployment during conversion from peacetime to wartime production, and said the changeover in refrigerator manufacturing facilities will be made without loss of pay to a single employe.

Bank Clearings Boosted in Week

NEW YORK, April 17.—(AP)—Bank clearings in 24 leading cities during the past week aggregated $6,416,456,000, a rise of 6.1 per cent from the previous week and 12.3 per cent ahead of the comparable week of 1941, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

The expansion occurred both in New York City, where most of the transactions were reported, and in the rest of the group.

Denver was added to the survey this week and previous data revised to provide accurate comparisons. Denver's turnover was $38,650,000, an increase of 13.8 per cent from last year's $33,953,000.

New York showed a volume of $3,223,608,000, a gain of 8.1 per cent over the like 1941 figures.

The more important advances over 1941 were topped by Detroit, up 34.3 per cent. Minneapolis clearings were 33.8 per cent ahead of 1941, St. Louis gained 25.5 per cent, Richmond 25.1, New Orleans 23.8 and Cleveland 23.1.

Clearings with percentage increases from last year were:

Bowling

The regular handicap weekly tournament will be held tonight at the downtown alleys at 8 o'clock. Women will be allotted two-thirds of the difference between their averages and 110 and men two-thirds of the difference between their averages and 120. The entry fee of $1.50 includes the cost of the five games to be bowled. Three cash awards will be given to each of the men's and women's division.

Also at 8 o'clock tonight, the finals of the head-to-head doubles tournament will be run off with Walter Lawson and Bob McCoy pairing off against Louie Outler and George Tyler. Both these teams shot high scores Thursday night in gaining the finals of this popular tournament, and a good close match is in prospect.

The Cartons team of the big Coca-Cola league won three out of five games against the Scoops team and thereby won the year's team championship.

Congratulations

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 17.—Cracker Bluebirds had dispatched a telegram of congratulations to one of their illustrious alumni, Willard Marshall, on making such an impressive start with the Giants, and they fell to talking about the different ways a player breaks into the majors.

They recalled how ex-Cracker Johnny Rucker was acclaimed as the rookie of the year and went to the majors with a great spread in one of the major pictorial magazines. He was given the cover and several inside pages.

Wise men of sports shook their heads and said it wasn't so good for Rucker's chances. "They've put the slick paper curse on Rucker," it was asserted.

Rucker didn't justify the send-off his first year and failed to attain stardom the second year. Marshall was turned down by scouts and finally sold on condition he'd have to make good or be returned. He went to the Giants unnoticed by New York fandom.

Apparently he also was lightly regarded by National League publicists for he wasn't even included among the promising rookies.

The Cracker Bluebirds thought it rather ironic under the circumstances that Marshall should get so little mention when his ability justified a greater spread than Rucker got when the Giants bought him without a question.

But wise men of sports grinned and said it was Marshall's good fortune to escape the early publicity and the slick paper curse.

Beat Out Duke

The full story of Marshall's debut in professional ball is one of the unusual sagas of the game. Wee Willie Duke, then a Cracker left fielder, had seen Marshall playing sandlot ball and also as a freshman at Wake Forest.

Duke recommended him highly to the Crackers, who dispatched Nap Rucker to scout him. Rucker saw in the raw-boned youngster the makings of a great star. Marshall showed him a fine pair of hands, a strong, accurate throwing arm and an ability to hit with men on the bases.

Rucker told Earl Mann Marshall was everything Duke said and so the Crackers promptly signed him. Marshall, on joining Atlanta for spring training, promptly beat Willie Duke out of a job.

It was somewhat remindful of the time Paul Richards recommended a home town (Waxahachie) product, Almon Williams, to Atlanta. Richards then was catching for Connie Mack at Philadelphia.

Well, the upshot of this was that Williams developed well and the Crackers traded him to Philadelphia for Richards.

As to Marshall, there is no questioning his ability. He can do everything well.

And the joker in the whole thing is that all the scouts passed him up.

They thought he was too slow to play the outfield in the majors. In reality, the scouts were too slow.

Scouts Fooled

I am not going to say "I told you so," but several times last season when Marshall was having a little difficulty with a change of pace and his batting average had slumped, it was suggested that a smart scout could do a lot worse than pick up Junior while the price was right.

None of them wanted him. It may be that Larry MacPhail, who needed a good outfielder, finally was persuaded by his scout that Marshall wouldn't fill the bill.

Anyway, I'd venture to say MacPhail today is a sad magnate. He could have had Marshall for $20,000 cash. He cost the Giants $30,000.

A few more timely knocks against Brooklyn such as his four-run homer and Marshall will have settled the investment. In fact, that game-winning homer was a most unusual early dividend.

After all is said and done, the butt of the whole affair is Nap Rucker, now serving his country in the Panama Canal Zone.

Nap signed 'em both for Atlanta and then lived to see Junior beat out his nephew, Johnny, in the Giant outfield.

And the day may come, on the other hand, when he will see them both in the same Giant outfield—a most odd circumstance, since Nap himself was a pitching star for Brooklyn, and as everyone knows, there is no love lost between these teams.

ROOKIE SLUGS WAY TO BRILLIANT DEBUT—Here's the left-handed swing which enabled Willard Marshall, New York Giant outfielder, to make the flashiest debut that a rookie has made this year in the major leagues by rapping out a homer with bases loaded to beat the Dodgers, 6-4, Wednesday. Upper right, a close-up of the 21-year-old Marshall, who has been in organized baseball only two years—having come to the Giants from the Atlanta Crackers. Lower right, his grip on the bat that has put his name among the big leaguers.

'Nooga Pitchers Hold Crackers To Four Hits

Louis Bush and Dale Livingston Touched for 16 Blows by Joe Engles' All-Rookie Outfit.

By JACK TROY,
Constitution Sports Editor.

ENGEL STADIUM, CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 17.—Chattanooga's "Million-Dollar Babies" from the Class B, C and D leagues found the Crackers to their liking today and breezed through the series opener, 9 to 1.

The all-rookie Lookouts performed like seasoned veterans and rapped Cracker pitching with the enthusiasm of a team that had been waiting a long time for this day.

Neither Louis Bush, who retired after the seventh, nor his successor, Dale Livingston, had the necessary stuff to throttle the Kids.

BIG SEVENTH.

Bush fared well until the seventh, allowing only two runs, but a big seventh produced five more runs. Livingston allowed a couple more in the eighth. The Lookouts collected 16 hits.

Sam Cunningham, a slim left-hander, gave up only two hits in five innings and left the game because of a wildness caused by a sore arm. Joe Beck, a right-hander, finished the game and was highly effective, yielding a single run in the eighth. In all, the Crackers were limited to four hits, and O'Brien got two of those.

A single game is scheduled in Chattanooga tomorrow and a double-header Sunday.

The Crackers beat themselves in the early innings. They had numerous scoring opportunities against Cunningham but couldn't cash in.

LOOKOUTS SCORE.

After two were out in the first inning a couple of hits and an error were responsible for two Lookout runs. Stein led off with a walk and Hoffman and Mellendick flied successively to O'Brien. Ignasiak singled to left and Stein stopped at third and Ignasiak at second, when O'Brien failed to field the ball. Both scored on Eason's single. Sullivan also singled off Blakeney's glove, but Blakeney recovered in time to throw out Eason going to third.

With the bases loaded on walks and only one away, Blakeney hit into a double play in the Crackers' half of the second inning.

The Crackers loaded the bases again on a hit and two walks in the third, but Cox popped up for the third out.

From the first through the fifth the Crackers left nine runners stranded, failing time after time in the pinch.

CUNNINGHAM QUITS.

Apparently because of a sore arm that was affecting his control Cunningham, who allowed only two hits in five innings, retired and was replaced by Beck.

In the seventh, Lane singled and Beck hit a drive which Thomassie dropped. It was called a hit. Stein followed with a triple, Hoffman with a single, Ignasiak with a triple, and a wild peg by Blakeney on Eason's roller added a total of five runs to the Lookout advantage.

A single by Sullivan, a triple by Roede and a single by Lane added the eighth and ninth Lookout runs in the eighth.

Medalist Blum And Stranahan In Semi-Finals

Both Shoot Great Rounds; Doeschler, Poole Also Win.

By ROMNEY WHEELER.

ATHENS, Ga., April 17.—(AP)—Cocky, Frank Stranahan, of Miami, chalked his palms and pitched dead to the pin in a hectic home-stretch today—and because he wouldn't wilt when the going was toughest will play Arnold Blum, of Georgia, tomorrow in the feature semi-final match of the Southern Intercollegiate golf tourney.

Stranahan fired nine pars and a birdie on the first 10 holes of his quarter-final match with Louisiana State's Dale Morey—without winning a hole. He wasn't square with Morey on the 16th, and he had to can a brilliant chip over a stymie from seven feet to halve the 139-yard, par-three 17th.

GREAT SHOOTING.

He won the match and a shot at the championship by spotting his approach 20 feet from the 18th pin and holing out with two putts, while his opponent chipped back from beyond the green and barely missed from eight feet.

While Stranahan was hammering out his comeback for that 1-up decision over Morey, Arnold Blum forged into the other half of the semi-final with a 3 and 2 victory over George Sharpe, of L. S. U.

The little University of Georgia junior from Macon, Ga., extended his sub-par streak to 33 below par for his last 10 rounds over the par-73 Athens Country Club course, and stood 11 under par for four rounds of the tournament.

Leading Sharpe 3-up at the turn, he gamely stood off the Louisianan's challenge on the back nine and won with a birdie four on the 16th. Sharpe won three holes and Blum three in a ding-dong engagement over the last seven holes.

DOESCHLER WINS.

In the lower bracket, North Carolina's Dick Doeschler fired 2-under-par to stop Duke's spectacular sophomore, Bill Goldthorpe, 4 and 3, after Goldthorpe had rallied to win a 1-up decision in the first round over Jack MacMurray, of Virginia.

Another Duke golfer, Grover Poole, won his way to the semi-final with a 2 and 1 victory over Ben Downing, of L. S. U., and a first-round victory over Graydon Lyles, of North Carolina, 2 and 1.

Doeschler and Poole meet tomorrow morning in the semi-final, while Blum plays Stranahan. The winners go 18 holes for the championship tomorrow afternoon.

Tech Track Team Meets Vols Today

Georgia Tech's undefeated track and field team will meet the University of Tennessee in a dual meet this afternoon at Knoxville, Tenn.

Tech holds victories over Alabama and Florida and will be favored this afternoon. Eddie Coughlin, miler; Ed Ryckeley, dash star, and Captain Billy Weeks, pole vault ace, are expected to score heavily for Coach Norris Dean's team.

Betsill Scores 4th Hole-in-One

Holes-in-one are getting to be a habit with C. E. Betsill, who shot the fourth in his career Thursday at West End Club.

Playing with M. D. Bishop, E. H. Gibson and T. E. Tolleson, Betsill used an eight-iron for the shot.

HUBBARD WINNER

Mrs. Henry Hubbard scored a 90 to win the flag tournament for the benefit of the Red Cross yesterday at Druid Hills. Mrs. Claude Swinney was runner-up.

All-Stars Will Play All-Service '9' July 7

NEW YORK, April 17.—(AP)—Baseball went to bat for the Army and Navy today by setting aside one regular game in each major league park, and in every minor league possible, for the service charities in addition to arranging for a major league All-Star team to play an All-Service squad.

Commissioner Kennesaw M. Landis, after meeting with baseball leaders and representatives of the Army and Navy, announced that the winner of the first All-Star clash between National and American league players at the Polo Grounds the night of July 6 would meet a team picked from the Army, Navy and Marines the following night in Cleveland.

Landis announced that the advisory council composed of himself and Presidents Ford Frick, of the National league, and William Harridge, of the American league, would recommend to all major league clubs that the entire receipts of one game in each park be turned over in equal shares to the Navy Relief Society and the Army Emergency Relief Fund.

S.E.C. Fight Looms Over Transfer Stars

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 17. (AP)—The possibility of a sharp fight developed tonight over whether transfer students, from schools which have dropped football, will be made eligible for play this fall in the Southeastern Conference as the organization's members gathered for their annual meeting tomorrow. Early arrivals here agreed that rules would be amended to allow freshmen to participate.

Hotel lobby talk had it that several schools would oppose any change in rules to allow transfers to participate. Several players from smaller schools have entered Southeastern Conference colleges since the gridiron sport was dropped at the smaller institutions.

The meeting also will have before it a proposal to require each school to play at least six Southeastern Conference opponents each fall, and to play every other conference opponent at least every other year.

Georgia Routs Auburn, 17-13, In Wild Game

Bulldogs Knock Two Pitchers Out in 11-Run Spree in 1st Inning.

AUBURN, Ala., April 17.—(AP)—Pitchers on parade featured today's slugging bee which the Georgia Bulldogs wrested from Auburn, 17-13.

The Bulldogs knocked two Auburn pitchers off the mound in the first inning, crossing the plate 11 times before the third man went down.

Georgia, however, used just as many hurlers as the foe—three. The teams hammered out 14 safeties each. Charlie Anderson paced the Bulldog batting attack with a triple, two doubles and, for good measure, a single in five trips.

On the losing nine, Curlee clubbed Georgia's pitching trio for two doubles and a brace of singles in five times.

Smith, Scruggs Pace Jackets Over Vandy, 8-1

Ex-Smithie Hurls 5-Hitter; Former Fulton Star Hits Hard.

Georgia Tech made it three wins in five conference starts by whipping the Commodores of Vanderbilt University, 8 to 1, yesterday at Rose Bowl Field in the first of a two-game series. The second tilt is billed for 3:30 o'clock this afternoon.

The Jackets came up with their best game against the Commodores. Duck Smith was the big show, tossing five-hit ball and slapping a pair of timely bingles. Smith had a shutout going into the ninth, but the visitors reached him for two hits and a run. He whiffed seven.

Tech jumped into the van wagon by tallying three times in the first inning when Castagnetta walked, Charley Scruggs singled, Carlton Lewis tripled to right and Bubber Quigg dribbled out an infield hit. Scruggs was the leading hitter, with three for five.

Dortch Whiffs 15 as Smiths Shade Typists

Bishop's Pinch Homer Wins, Purples Slug Marist, 21 to 1.

Boys' High and Tech High continued to run neck-and-neck atop the Big Five Baseball League standings after an eventful day yesterday which saw the Purples slaughter Marist, 21 to 1, and the Smithies shade Commercial, making its first league appearance, 4 to 3, on Pinch-Hitter Charlie Bishop's home run in the eighth inning.

Mike Dortch, Smithie right-hander, bested Typist Flinger Standard in a hurling duel for the Blacksmith victory. Dortch doled out four hits and fanned 15 men. Eddie Baker banged two safeties for Tech High, Catcher Davis clouted a triple for the Typists' best blow.

Dendinger and Neal allowed only four hits, two by Carr, as the Purples blasted 21 bingles, including home runs by Dendinger, King and Chub Jenkins. Pitcher Charlie Smith, doubling in brass as an outfielder, led the attack with four for five. Jenkins and Catcher McRae blistered three hits each.

Purple, G. M. A. Track Teams Run in Florida Meet Today

Unable to get the school to send them, six members of Boys' High's brilliant track brigade got together and motored to Jacksonille yesterday to compete in the Florida State Invitational track meet this afternoon.

Pole Vaulter and Team Captain Francis Bridges, Broad Jumper Clinton Winters, Hurdler John Bickerstaff and Charles Brooks, Johnny Griffith and Billy Haas, all dash men, made the trip, and have high hopes of winning some first places.

Major M. C. Paget's G. M. A. team, long one of the south's best, also went down for the meet, in which 20 Florida and Georgia high schools are entered. The Cadets finished second last year after winning first place in the meet the three previous years.

Whittier, Cafe Clash Today In Main Game

Heated action has started in the Atlanta Amateur Baseball Federation with Central Cafe and Whittier Mills promising the feature city league game at the Fruit Growers' diamond this afternoon at 5 o'clock. Neither team has been beaten in the two scheduled games, each claiming a victory over Dixisteel, 1941 Commercial League champions.

Dixisteel has not scored in 18 innings, losing to Whittier, 1 to 0, in the opener, and to Central Cafe, 5 to 0, Wednesday evening in the twilight league.

Other league features are Dixie Culvert and Motor Transport, both undefeated, at Hapeville, in the Scott League. Western Auto and Naval Reserve, new Atlanta League teams, are slated for a headline tilt at Piedmont park. Undefeated Westminster and Exposition Mills will fight for the lead in the Georgia League at Piedmont park.

The schedule:

CITY LEAGUE.

Lawson vs. Dixisteel at Glenn field (4:30 o'clock). Umpires, Shi and Herron.

Clarkdale vs. Fulton Bag at Fulton Bag (5 o'clock). Umpires, Austin and Cecil Moon.

Whittier vs. Central Cafe at Fruit Growers (4:30 o'clock). Umpires, Williams and Spurlin.

SCOTT LEAGUE.

Dixie Culvert vs. Motor Transport at Hapeville (4:30 o'clock). Umpire, Gillespie.

Smyrna vs. White Provision at White Provision (4:30 o'clock). Umpire, Kiker.

Marietta vs. Sou. Ry. at Grant park (4:30 o'clock). Umpire, Short.

Ga. Power vs. Oakland City at J. A. White (6 o'clock). Umpire, Wilkes.

GEORGIA LEAGUE.

Little Star vs. Rogers at Adair park (4 o'clock). Umpire, Powell.

Scottdale vs. Buckhead Elks at North Fulton park (4 o'clock). Umpire, Wilson.

Exposition Mills vs. Westminster at N. E. Piedmont (4 o'clock). Umpire, Peppers.

ATLANTA LEAGUE.

Arrow Shirt vs. Panthersville at Panthersville (4 o'clock). Umpire, Potts.

Southern Shops vs. General Shoe at General Shoe (6 o'clock). Umpire, Morrow.

Naval Reserve vs. Western Auto at N. W. Piedmont (4 o'clock). Umpire, Chick Harris.

Three Smash 100 Clay Birds At Sea Island

SEA ISLAND, Ga., April 17.—(AP)—One hundred shots each, and 100 hits each, was the score of three Class A leaders today in the Sea Island Invitation skeet shoot.

The marksmen perfect for the day were Richard P. Shaughnessy, Dedham, Mass.; H. Lutcher Brown, San Antonio, Texas, and Russell Aitken, New York; M. L. Smythe, Aurora, Ohio, was runner-up with 99.

The all-gauge championship contest is at the halfway point.

In Class B, Caryl Sayre and T. A. Wylie, New Yorkers, tied at 99.

Class C was paced by D. A. Killefer, Boston, who got 94, while a fellow Bostonian, W. E. Beakes, was runner-up with 87.

Frederick Ayer Jr., Washington, D. C., led Class D marksmen with a 95, followed by T. V. Wood, Philadelphia, who connected with 85.

Leading the women in Class A were Mrs. C. A. Thomas, Dayton, Ohio, and Mrs. M. L. Smythe, Aurora, tied at 99. There was a tie also for runner-up in this class between Mrs. L. W. Childs, Lake Kerr, Fla., and Mrs. M. B. Orr, New York, at 97.

Women's Class B lead went to Mrs. Mank Camp, Ocala, Fla., 95, and runner-up honor to Miss Louise Spruance, Wilmington, Del., 87.

Mrs. W. H. Hobson, Philadelphia, copped the Class C lead with an 83, and Mrs. Clyde King, Atlanta, followed closely at 81.

Soviet Forces Reported Near Smolensk Area

Germans Fortifying Every House Against Red Offensive.

LONDON, April 17.—(AP)—The Red army was driving ahead against fierce German resistance tonight and capturing "one great fortress after another" in the area of Demidov, 40 miles northwest of Smolensk, the Moscow radio reported.

Stockholm dispatches said advanced Russian units had reached the approaches of Smolensk itself and that the Germans were fortifying every house of that already strongly buttressed city.

There was no information to indicate whether the Russians were threatening Smolensk with sufficient force to attempt an assault directly upon that key point, but Stockholm dispatches said raiding columns in White Russia, west of the city, were handicapping German efforts to rush up reinforcements.

This agreed with the Russian report of assaults around Demidov, strengthening an impression that the Russians might be starting an encirclement maneuver.

Heavy fighting also was reported between Lakes Ilmen, Ladoga and Onega, as the Russians sought to erase the menace to Leningrad before the thaws convert roads into bogs and streams into torrents.

Russian and other accounts indicate the fighting north of Lake Ilmen was possibly the heaviest in recent weeks.

Belief that large Soviet forces were employed in the assaults was based partly on a German announcement earlier this week that the German air force was attacking Russian troop and tank concentrations along ice crossings which remained usable.

Still farther north, between Lakes Ladoga and Onega, the Finns acknowledged that the Russians were hammering at their lines in a major offensive now six days old.

The Finns claimed they were holding firm, however, and that Russian attempts to storm their positions were costly failures.

The Moscow communique tonight said the Russians pressed forward on several sectors of the front today "and improved their positions."

On the Kalinin front it listed 600 Germans killed and quantities of booty captured. Fifteen German planes were reported downed yesterday to five Soviet losses.

Madame Chiang Pays Respects to 'Tigers'

CHUNGKING, April 17.—(AP)—Madame Chiang Kai-shek, honorary commandant of the American Volunteer Group, paid her nation's tribute today to those airmen—the Flying Tigers—in presentation of a painting to the group.

The picture, "The Flying Eagles," by a celebrated Chinese artist, was accepted on behalf of the AVG by James Howard, who succeeded the late Jack Newkirk as squadron leader.

"As the eagle looks unflinchingly into the sun so the AVG gazes defiantly at the setting sun of Japan," said the American-educated former Mayling Soong who became the wife of China's generalissimo.

Elsie Barrow Succumbs to Strep Infection

Stricken in December, Girl Loses Long, Determined Fight.

Death yesterday was the victor in a long and grim battle between little Elsie Jane Barrow, 9, and a streptococci infection.

Elsie Jane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Barrow, of 764 Greenwood avenue, N. E., was stricken with the infection in December, the day after she was promoted from the high third to the low fourth grade at Samuel M. Inman school.

Anxious to return to school, the child battled determinedly, and had showed signs of improvement, but fatal complications developed recently.

In addition to her parents, she is survived by a sister, Joan Bennett Barrow, and her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Strickland, of Newnan, and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Barrow, of Blackstone, Virginia.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill, with Dr. Louie D. Newton officiating. Burial will be in Oak Hill cemetery, Newnan.

Patriotic Group Performs Tonight

Atlantans will be given another opportunity tonight to see "You Can Defend America," the stirring patriotic drama which played to a turn-away throng here last Sunday.

Returning to Atlanta after filling engagements this week in Florida and South Carolina, the company will play at the Erlanger theater tonight, and a second performance will be given at the Municipal auditorium Monday night.

With a cast of more than 80 people, the company is presenting "You Can Defend America" free of charge. Organized in California last year, the company has appeared in more than 20 states of the nation. No admission will be charged.

'Blackout Smoker' Gets Beating, Jail Sentence

NEWARK, N. J., April 17.—(AP) A recalcitrant cigaret smoker, whose refusal to obey a woman air-raid warden's demand he cease smoking during a test blackout brought him a rawhide whipping, was sentenced to a year in jail yesterday for disorderly conduct.

Judge William Untermann in imposing the sentence on Archie Otom, 47, of Newark, said he hoped the prison term would be a lesson, to those who failed to heed instructions in the blackout of metropolitan New Jersey Wednesday night. The warden, Mrs. Esther Gialanella, was given the whip for protection by her husband when she went on duty.

10 Jap Raiders Are Repulsed By Australians

Dutch Will Reorganize Their Indies Air Force in U. S.

MELBOURNE, Australia, April 17.—(AP) — Royal Australian Air Force fighter planes met a squadron of ten Japanese raiders in the air over Port Moresby today and landed unscathed with reports of destruction or damage to at least four of the enemy.

The raiders—five bombers covered by five fighters—dropped some 45 bombs from 22,000 feet, causing no damage of consequence to the Allied outpost on New Guinea Island, above the Australian mainland.

Before the Japanese could get away the RAAF was on them.

During the day another prospective strengthening of the Allied air arm was disclosed.

Dutch leaders announced that the Netherlands East Indies air force would be reorganized in the United States under command of Major General Ludolph Van Oyen.

It also was disclosed that the Dutch are selling to Australia, without profit, large quantities of planes, tanks, machineguns, rifles and ammunition which had been ordered from the United States, but not received in time for use in the Indies.

Lifeboat Blasted By Axis Torpedo

NEW ORLEANS, April 17.—(AP) A lifeboat pushing off from a torpedoed South African ship in the Atlantic March 7 was blown to pieces by one of two torpedo explosions and its 10 occupants were killed, six survivors of the sunken ship declared on arrival here from the West Indies.

Another boatload of survivors which rowed for 28 hours before reaching shore at St. Vincent's, British West Indies, was trailed by two enemy submarines, but escaped after an American patrol boat appeared.

The remainder of the 51 crew members, with the exception of two who died en route from burns, rowed ashore in three life boats, the second mate said here.

British Ship Hit Off West Indies

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP) The Navy announced today that a medium-sized British merchant vessel had been torpedoed in the Atlantic off the West Indies. Survivors have been landed at a port on the Gulf of Mexico.

Jimmie Norris Richards Dies Near Marietta

Colonel Bach Funeral Rites Are Set Today

Officer Succumbed Thursday Night Following Brief Illness.

Funeral services for Colonel C. A. Bach, retired Army officer, residing at 2416 Dellwood drive, N. W., who died late Thursday night at the post hospital at Fort McPherson following a brief illness, will be held at 5 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill, Father William A. McGuire, post chaplain, officiating. Burial will be in the Arlington cemetery, at Washington.

Colonel Bach, who rose from the ranks to the office of colonel, had a long and brilliant military record.

He was a veteran of the Spanish-American War, saw service during the Philippine Insurrection, on the Mexican border, and in France in 1917-18. Following the armistice, he went on into Germany with the Army of Occupation, remaining there for several months.

While in France, Colonel Bach served as chief of staff of the Fourth Division, and won the Croix de Guerre and the Distinguished Service Medal for gallantry in action. He also was a member of the Legion of Honor.

Colonel Bach was serving as inspector general of the Fourth Corps Area at the time of his retirement in 1934.

At the services this afternoon, comrades during his long and distinguished military career will serve as pallbearers. They are Major General George Van Horn Mosley, Colonel T. S. Bratton, Colonel Henry S. Richmond, Colonel H. J. M. Smith, Colonel Robert Williams and Colonel Lawrence W. Young.

Alfred Hertz, 69, Conductor, Dies

SAN FRANCISCO, April 17.—(AP)—Alfred Hertz, 69-year-old crippled symphony orchestra conductor and recognized authority on Wagnerian music, died today.

He had been troubled by a failing heart for years, and was taken to a hospital a week ago suffering from a weakened heart and pneumonia.

Hertz, a native of Germany, made his American debut in the New York Metropolitan Opera house in 1902. He directed German opera at the Metropolitan until 1915 when he came west to become a director of the San Francisco symphony orchestra for the next 15 years. From 1932 until his retirement two years ago, he conducted the Standard Symphony Hour over the radio.

The square-bearded, stockily built musician, was crippled by infantile paralysis but it did not interfere with his conducting.

DR. JEAN PERRIN.

NEW YORK, April 17.—(AP)—Dr. Jean Perrin, 71, French scientist and winner of the Nobel Prize for physics in 1926, died today in Mount Sinai hospital.

'Clean Up Attics,' Committee Urges

"Defend your home and city by cleaning up," is the slogan adopted yesterday by the Women's Chamber of Commerce and the fire department's bureau of fire prevention as they called the attention of Atlantans to the fact that next week is "clean-up week."

"We urge everyone to pay particular attention to cleaning up their attics so there will not be a lot of old papers and bric-a-brac around to provide fuel for a fire if an incendiary bomb should fall in the attic," said Sidney B. Jewett, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Fire Prevention Committee.

"Home owners and air raid wardens have a fairly good chance of extinguishing an incendiary bomb in a clean, accessible attic."

Lear Issues Program On Conditioning Army

MEMPHIS, April 17.—(AP)—Lieutenant General Ben Lear issued today a seven-point conditioning program designed to toughen his Second Army into a first-class fighting machine.

"Obstacle course dashes over barriers which force the runner to jump, vault, crawl, climb and swing by the hands" was one of the conditioning points. "Marches of increasing length with increasing loads" was another.

The men saw a little relief in a footnote to the order:

"But the training grind should not be carried too far. Too much work will result in staleness."

Louisville Pair Admit Being Enemy Agents

Five-Year Sentences, $3,000 Fines Imposed by U. S. Judge.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 17.—(AP)—Pleading guilty to charges of being unregistered Nazi agents, George K. Bodenschatz, 49, and his wife, Viola, 59, were sentenced in federal court today to five years' imprisonment and fined $3,000 each.

The couple also received two-year prison sentences and fines of $1,000 each on another count of the indictment, but the two-year terms are to run concurrently with the longer sentence and Judge Elwood Hamilton specified that the $1,000 fine was not to be paid.

Bodenschatz, a former Louisville manufacturer, is a brother of Lieutenant General Karl Bodenschatz, of the German army.

The Bodenschatz plea came unexpectedly today as both appeared in court for arguments on a general demurrer to the indictment. They were scheduled to go on trial April 27.

The couple has been at liberty under $5,000 bond each since their arraignment last month.

Mrs. Bodenschatz is a native of Cincinnati, Ohio, where she was born Viola Heise, daughter of a Sellersburg (Ind.) grocer. She has made frequent trips to Germany in recent years and on her return has spoken several times before women's organizations on Hitler's Germany.

Bodenschatz until several weeks ago was head of a leather welt firm here. After his indictment the nattily dressed, well-groomed naturalized American sold out his interest in the concern. At the time he said he was liquidating his assets to pay his lawyers.

J. L. Singer Jr. Dies Here at 46

John Lewis Singer Jr., 46, of 332 Ponce de Leon avenue, manager of the ladies' shoe department of the George Muse Clothing Company, died yesterday at a private hospital.

He is survived by his wife; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Singer Sr., of Lumpkin, Ga.; a sister, Mrs. A. J. Stubbs, and a brother, Herbert Singer.

Graveside funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in Lumpkin cemetery.

John Will Giles, 83, died yesterday at the residence, 846 Dalney street, N. W.

He is survived by his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Vivian L. Burdett and Mrs. Curtis King; three sons, E. M., W. E. and Arthur W. Giles; a brother, Emory Giles, and a sister, Mrs. Lizzie Echols.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Temple Baptist church, with the Rev. George N. McLarty officiating. Burial will be at Sandy Springs.

Javanese Bushfighters Arrive in Melbourne

MELBOURNE, April 17.—(AP)—A detachment of short, wiry, savage-looking Javanese bushfighters expected to prove an important cog in the United Nations fighting machine arrived tonight in small boats after slipping through the Japanese naval blockade.

Although Dutch officers directed their movement, the force was led by a short, jovial brown-skinned Javanese, Captain Edwards Van Muyen who said they had been mistaken as Japanese and fired upon as they approached Australia.

Two Veterans Of Power Firm Are Honored

Arkwright, Rolader Guests at Supervisors' Dinner.

Two 40-year veterans of the Georgia Power Company, P. S. Arkwright, president, and W. L. Rolader, special investigator, were honored at the annual dinner of the supervisory force of the company's transportation department last night at the Henry Grady hotel.

Guests included Mayor Lyle, Ralph McGill, executive editor of The Constitution; Police Chief Hornsby; Construction Chief Clarke Donaldson; Lambdin Kay, director of the Atlanta Convention and Visitors' Bureau, and Ralph Ramsey, secretary of the Georgia Education Association.

City transportation problems brought about by war conditions were discussed by W. R. Pollard, manager of transportation of the power company. He referred particularly to the difficulty of serving the Bell Aircraft plant near Marietta.

Arkwright pointed out that the power company had met such problems in the past, particularly during World War I, and would not fail to give as good service as the limitation on obtaining new equipment permits.

Mayor Lyle referred to the city's difficulties in providing water service to the Bell plant.

McGill advised all men not acceptable for military service to contribute to the war effort by making the most of their present jobs. Supervisor W. R. Brooks was master of ceremonies.

F. Roy Almon, Salesman, Dies

F. Roy Almon, a salesman, of 314 Ware avenue, East Point, died yesterday while in the office of his physician.

Almon, in declining health for the past several years, had gone to his physician for treatment when he collapsed.

He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Clyde Hendrick and Mrs. J. H. Stephens; a nephew, Roy Almon Hendrick, and a niece, Mrs. Robert Cochran. Funeral arrangements will be announced by A. C. Hemperley & Son.

Marist Recitation Winners Listed

Cadet Bob Strickland yesterday was awarded the Mrs. P. O. Herbert medal for his recitation on "The Revenge" by Alfred Tennyson during the annual senior declamation at Marist College.

Stephen Burke was awarded second prize for "The One-Legged Goose," by Hopkins Smith, and third prize went to Clarke Beaudry, who gave "The Death Bed of Benedict Arnold," by George Lippart. Cadet Major Robert Jordan was master of ceremonies.

Nelson Named Acting Postmaster at Devereux

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

SPARTA, Ga., April 17.—Carlisle Nelson, who served as assistant postmaster at Devereux, in Hancock county, under his father, the late Eugene H. Nelson, has been named acting postmaster.

Postmaster E. H. Nelson died a few weeks ago after a long illness and his son is a candidate for the office. He is familiar with the work as he did much of the work before the death of his father.

Army Stressing Recruiting of Men 18 and 19

Continues To Accept Enlistments of Those Up to 45.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP) War Department officials said today the Army was concentrating its recruiting efforts on an estimated 3,000,000 young men of 18 and 19 years but continued to accept enlistments from men up to 45 who present releases from their draft boards.

An increasing percentage of volunteer recruits is represented by those under 20, but officials expressed doubt these constituted a majority of those accepted.

A new order, it was disclosed, permits men of 18 and 19 to select the combat arms in which they will serve, including the Air Corps, but the privilege is denied older men.

Expect Increase.

As a result officials said they hoped voluntary enlistments would again head upward after falling from the record peak of the 90,441 who entered the Army voluntarily in January. The February enrollment was 38,003 and for March 53,527.

The number of men the Army may accept as volunteers and through the selective service system is governed, it was explained, by the capacity of reception and replacement training centers and by the needs of the armed forces.

Monthly quotas for both volunteers and selective service recruits are assigned to the nine corps areas in the continental United States, and these sometimes result in turning away applicants. Men especially qualified are favored over others, on the basis of official directives issued from time to time to enroll such specialists as construction engineers and radio operators.

Policy Changes.

Army recruiting policy has changed repeatedly since Pearl Harbor and several months preceding Pearl Harbor. Last May the former privilege granted a volunteer of selecting his bracnh was rescinded, except for men especially qualified for the Air Corps.

Beginning February 7, enlistments directed for the Air Corps were halted, and no recruits were assigned to specific branches in advance.

The latest change came when those of 18 and 19 were permitted to select the combat arm they favored.
